Patty Hearst trial heads for jury

Case goes to panel Friday after today's closing arguments

. . . for the defense

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst's final gesture of defiance, two days after her capture, was the last evidence her jury heard as testimony in her eight-week-old bank robbery trial came to a dramatic end.

"Gentlemen, the evidence is closed," U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter said Wednesday after the government played for the jury a profanity-tinted jailhouse recording between Miss Hearst and a childhood friend.

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. and defense counsel F. Lee Bailey planned to present their closing arguments to the jury of seven women and five men today. Carter has said he will send the case to the panel Friday morning.

Bailey wrapped up his defense by calling the defendant's mother, Catherine Hearst, to testify that the 22-year-old newspaper heiress had been a "warm and loving girl" prior to her Feb. 4, 1974, kidnaping.

In 37 days, the jury heard from 67 witnesses and had more than 100 exhibits and pieces of evidence to consider. The government tried to prove Miss Hearst willingly participated in the robbery of a Hibernia Bank branch 10 weeks after her kidaping. Her attorneys argued she took part in the holdup in fear of death at the hands of her Symbionese Liberation Army captors.

Browning got the last shot Wednesday, playing for the hushed courtroom a taped recording of Miss Hearst in custody, bitterly protesting her Sept. 18 arrest to friend Patricia Tobin and declaring her commitment to "revolutionary feminism."

Sprinkled with laughter, sarcasm and salty epithets, the 20-minute tape enraptured the jury and was in sharp contrast with the quiet courtroom demeanor of Miss Hearst.

Many of the jurors bowed their heads and listened intently. One sat with his eyes closed the entire time, and a woman juror stared almost constantly at the defendant.

Miss Hearst and one of her attorneys, Al Johnson, followed the tape with a transcript they shared. Bailey left the courtroom and prowled the corridor, smoking cigarettes, until the tape was concluded.

Miss Hearst appeared unusually cheerful at a brief "housekeeping" session in the afternoon outside the presence of the jury. She smiled and chatted with an attorney while others discussed legal matters.

With the exception of the playing of the tape, Miss Hearst appeared relaxed and alert as her case neared the jury. She flashed a smile when her mother strolled to the witness stand. Her father, San Francisco Examiner president Randolph A. Hearst, had testified briefly Tuesday.

"She was a warm and loving girl," Mrs. Hearst said. "We always lived a very close family life. She and I shared a mutual enthusiasm for art so we always had a great deal in common."

Speaking in a soft Southern accent, the Georgia-born Mrs. Hearst was asked by Bailey if the defendant had been "strong-willed" as a youth. "Yes," she replied.

Miss Hearst's father had described his daughter as "warm, strong-willed and independent" in his testimony.

Young undercover agent

Boy, 14, has little trouble buying piles of pornographic literature

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A 14-year-old boy with braces on his teeth bought piles of pornographic material at stores in Jacksonville. He did it with his parents' approval and the help of police.

It was all part of a raid.

As the result of the boy's undercover work Wednesday, 12 men were charged with possessing or distributing pornographic material.

"We found a concerned citizen who was willing to allow his son to be subjected to seeing such material," said Sgt. James Pfeiffer. He refused to identify the boy.

"All of the stores he tried had signs saying that no minor under 18 years of age is allowed to enter or purchase such material," the officer said.

"In one store he was asked how old he was and when he said he was 14, the salesman said, 'Well, I'm not supposed to do this ...' and then sold him the material."

Pfeiffer said an undercover agent — an adult — was in each store for the youth's visits and that one of the boy's parents was in the immediate area. The arrests were made immediately after the purchases.

It wasn't the first time police here have used teen-agers to make such purchases, Pfeiffer said. He said teen-agers are used because it results in more serious charges against shop owners and operators.

"Many people feel there is nothing wrong with such material unless it gets into the hands of the kids," he said. "We know they're selling it to minors and this proves it."

Pfeiffer said when police choose a minor as an undercover agent they stay away from those who could pass for 18, the legal adult age in Florida.

General Dynamics' Convair Division gets big contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — General Dynamics' Convair Division in San Diego has been selected to develop the Navy's sea-launched cruise missile.

A Convair spokesman said Wednesday that if the project moves into a full scale production program it could mean as many as 2,000 jobs in San Diego.

General Dynamics emerged as the winner for the potentially huge development program — which could reach total expenditures on the order of $625 million — after the Vought Corp. was ordered by the Navy early this month to stop development work because of a cost overrun.

The Tomahawk cruise missile is a pilotless jet-powered drone, similar to a small airplane, which can be fired from submarine torpedo tubes at targets up to 2,000 miles away.

U.S. imports more oil now than it produces

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States last week imported more oil than it produced for the first time in history even though Americans are demanding less oil now than they did before the Arab oil embargo.

The figures, released Wednesday by the American Petroleum Institute and confirmed by the Federal Energy Administration, show domestic production continuing a six-year decline and U.S. imports rising to record levels to meet demands that nevertheless are two million barrels per day below their peak level before the 1973 embargo.

Imports have been rising since the end of the embargo in early 1974 and crept above the 8-million-barrels-a-day level last week for the first time ever. Domestic production has been declining steadily from its peak of over 9 million barrels a day, recorded in 1970.

The result is that although conservation efforts, recession and mild winter weather since 1973 have lessened the amount of oil Americans use, the United States is more dependent on foreign oil sources than it was when the embargo was imposed.

The industry institute said total imports last week rose to 8,196,000 barrels a day. Domestic production, meanwhile, came to 8,013,500 last week, the API said.

Imports now comprise 45 per cent of the oil used in the United States. Last year, they accounted for 30 per cent, the API said.

Reasons for the decline in U.S. production are hotly disputed. Industry officials point out that prices of domestic oil are controlled and they argue that higher prices are needed to stimulate production. They say price controls have served to keep prices too low to provide incentives for new exploration — extremely costly when it involves searching the ocean's floor or searches in remote areas.

Industry leaders note a prolonged slump in domestic drilling and explorations. For example, the number of wells completed dropped from a record 58,000 in 1956 to a low of 27,300 in 1971. Well completions — final word on whether a potential drilling site will produce oil or is barren — rose after oil prices increased following the embargo and last year hit the 38,000 level.

On the other hand, critics of the industry claim oil companies are deliberately deferring production to get higher prices.

Bodies of Diamond Bar plane crash victims found in Ariz.

The bodies of a man and woman found near a wrecked plane in Arizona have been identified as a Diamond Bar couple missing since Aug. 3.

They are Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Allen of 123 N. Paloa Cerde Drive. Another body found at the wreckage was Edward Sedgwick, 33, of Northridge, the pilot.

The three had spent a weekend at Lake Powell, Ariz., and a massive search was launched when they failed to arrive at Lake Havasu.

Civil Air Patrol wings in Arizona, California, Nevada and Utah logged more than 500 hours in seeking the downed plane.

The bodies were found Friday near Marble Canyon, Ariz., by some hikers. The site was near the Colorado River, about 40 miles northeast of the Grand Canyon.

Conconino County Sheriff's officers reported identifications were made Wednesday by use of dental charts on Sedgewick and Allen. Partial remains of a third person were believed to be Mrs. Allen.

Allen, 40, had been employed as a computer programmer with the Archeon Industries in Industry. Mrs. Allen, 33, was a secretary for the Southern California Edison Co. in West Covina.

They have a daughter, Dorianne, who is being cared for by her grandmother, Mrs. Frances Pearce, who resided with the family.

Memorial services for Mr. and Mrs. Allen were held Jan. 7 at the Diamond Bar Congregational Church.

Their remains are expected to be shipped to Texarkana, Tex., for burial.

Forgiving husband helps wife get light sentence

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Thanks to her husband, Rose Duncan of San Diego will serve her oneyear jail sentence in an honor camp instead of state prison.

Superior Court Judge Douglas Woodworth could have sentenced her to state prison Wednesday, but softened the sentence after Dennis Duncan pleaded for leniency for his wife.

"All she was guilty of was an unwise decision," Duncan said. "I want her home."

Mrs. Duncan, 42, had pleaded no contest to charges that she offered a $1,000 down payment to anyone who would kill her husband.

A hot cup today for coffee drinkers

New study now discounts link to heart attack

BOSTON (AP) — A four-year-old study that linked coffee-drinking with heart attacks has been discounted by a new one.

In the study published today in the New England Journal of Medicine, a team of Boston doctors says, "The risks, if any ... appear small."

Four years ago, the Boston Collaborative Drug Surveillance Program at Boston University said the risk of acute myocardial infarction — the heart damage that results from a blocked artery — was increased 60 per cent for those who drank one to five cups of coffee each day and 120 per cent for those who drank more than six cups.

Meteorite flashes across Southland

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A fireball with a long, glowing tail that lit up Southern California skies was probably a chunk of iron about the size of a station wagon, a spokesman for Griffith Park Observatory says.

The brilliant meteorite entered the atmosphere at about 8:05 p.m. Wednesday prompting calls to law enforcement agencies from San Diego to north of Los Angeles.

"When a meteorite is that bright, it's called a fireball," said Andy Stewart of the Observatory. "Any time you can see a meteorite from Los Angeles with all those lights, you know it's a fireball."

"From what we can gather," Stewart continued, "it probably landed in the ocean between here and San Diego, if it landed at all."

The fireball was traveling at 12 to 15 miles per second when it hit the atmosphere, he said. "It was probably a large piece of iron from space that entered the atmosphere. It was probably the size of a station wagon."

The Federal Aviation Administration determined the fireball was "definitely not an aircraft," a spokesman said. The FAA had speculated that the fireball might have been a space probe reentering the atmosphere.

Coastal bill faces strain in legislature

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A major coastal conservation bill will probably need "substantial changes" before it can win approval of the California Legislature, says the author.

Sen. Anthony Beilenson, D-Los Angeles, introduced the bill to carry out the 1972 coastal initiative approved by the voters as Prop. 20.

He commented Wednesday after the bill's second hearing before the Senate Natural Resources and Wildlife Committee.

But Beilenson said the anticipated amendments can probably be made without eliminating the means to adequately curb construction along the coast.

The measure would require local governments on the coast to bring their land-use plans into line with the statewide coastal plan developed under Prop. 20.

It would also create a permanent state coastal commission, which would act as an appeals board for citizens who felt a local agency was not following the objectives of the state plan.

The objectives of the plan include the protection of coastal farm and timber lands, concentration of development in already urbanized areas, and the maximization of public access to beaches.

A WARNING TO PASSENGERS

Londoners are getting extra cautious this week about bombings. Posters are going up in the city's subway stations after an outbreak of bombings in trains. Police guards have also been added on all subway and commuter trains. Scotland Yard blamed the bombings on the Irish Republican Army, fighting a guerrilla war in Northern Ireland.

Rapid transit plan vote is alive again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Southern California Rapid Transit District has directed that an ordinance be drawn to permit Los Angeles County voters to decide on two separate ½ cent sales tax increases to pay for a starter rapid transit system.

Supervisor Baxter Ward had proposed that the two ½ cent tax increases be lumped together so voters could decide on them easily. But a state Senate committee delayed action Tuesday on a bill to allow consolidation of the increases.

On Wednesday, however, the RTD directors voted 9-1 to have an ordinance drawn permitting both increases on the June 8 ballot.

"I am obviously pleased," Ward said after the vote, "but I am also totally aware of the hurdles."

Ward has scaled down his proposal from a $7.1 billion, 281-mile transit project to a $5.8 billion, 244-mile plan.

State proposes plan to cut red tape for impact reports

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Major changes in California's 5-year-old environmental protection law are being proposed by the administration of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

Brown's resources secretary, Claire Dedrick, said Wednesday the proposals may provoke "a bleeding war" between government and developers.

Developers have sharply criticized the 1970 Environmental Quality Act on grounds it loads them with paperwork, causes delays and increases costs.

Mrs. Dedrick told a news conference that the 52 proposed changes should cut red tape. She said public hearings would be held in May.

The act requires public and private developers to file environmental impact reports (EIRs) before construction.

But in general, Mrs. Dedrick said, the act worked "incredibly well" during its first five years.

One proposal would require that neutral consultants submit EIRs for developers, who wouldn't be permitted to make their own direct reports. Mrs. Dedrick said this would help eliminate biased accounts from developers.

But Phil Fradkin, a spokesman for Mrs. Dedrick, said this proposal may be resisted by developers. He said local governments might also see it as an additional burden.

But environmentalists, Fradkin said, "might think it is the best part of the whole package."

Norman Hill, chief administrator of the act, said there have been numerous abuses in EIRs which are "advocacy documents, massive amounts of information designed to conceal environmental impact instead of laying it out in the open."

Other proposals would:

—Require an initial study to support a finding of no significant environmental impact. This would give local government a record that the public could review.

—Relieve a developer who revises a project to eliminate adverse effects from having to file another impact report. Mrs. Dedrick said this would eliminate the "paper shuffling war that ends up in court."

—Reduce the scope of EIRs when projects are minor with limited effects.

—Allow EIRs to be done in phases, rather than all at once. Mrs. Dedrick said this would enable officials to catch problems as they develop.

—Allow agencies to develop EIRs jointly so as to reduce paperwork and expand "the narrow view of a single agency."

Mrs. Dedrick said the purpose of the act, to provide governmental planners with "good information," hasn't been carried out "because the EIR became so complicated, so full of red tape" that experts were needed to advise the decisonmakers.

Bill Press, head of the governor's Office of Planning and Research, said a study has disproven the contentions that the act has caused a flood of frivolous lawsuits, excessive project costs and interminable delays.

Press said the cost of the act in 1974, including delays in construction, was $50 million to $75 million.

He added that the average delay was three months for 15 per cent of the housing units built in the state, and only 2 per cent of the 4,000 reports a year involve lawsuits.

Carter aide on Brown candidacy: no staff, no funds, no platform

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has won endorsements for president from most of the moderate Democrats and some of the liberals in the California Assembly.

But a spokesman for presidential front runner Jimmy Carter Wednesday tossed one of the first political barbs at Brown's six-day-old campaign, saying Brown is running for "power broker" instead of president.

Brown still had no finance chairman or campaign director today, no staff and no clear statement of how hard he will run or what his platform will be except to "ask some questions" and "offer a wider choice to California Democrats."

Brown said Tuesday that he would "campaign in California in the context of a national campaign," not as a favorite son. He said campaign issues "will emerge."

The reaction to Brown's announcement generally was favorable or cautious among Democratic leaders. One of the most critical comments came from a spokesman for the former Georgia governor's campaign.

Terry Utterback, Southern California coordinator of the Carter campaign, disputed Brown's contention that he is a national candidate.

"I think it's clear to most political insiders that he's not running for president. He's running for power broker (at the Democratic National Convention), and I think the public will catch on to that," Utterback said in a telephone interview.

"Brown's popularity is high, but his appeal as a presidential candidate may be quite different from his appeal as governor," Utterback said.

Brown has announced only that he will run in California's last-in-the-nation primary. He has not ruled out all other primaries, but he has made no move to get on the ballot in the few states that still have not closed candidate filing times, including Utah today.

Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy, Brown's campaign chairman, announced Wednesday that 31 of the 55 Democrats in the state Assembly had endorsed Brown for president in California's June 8 primary.

The list of endorsements included five of the six blacks and one of the four Chicano members of the Assembly. It was almost a complete roster of the moderate or middle range of the Democratic caucus in the lower house.

Prop. 15 backer to address Demo club

Tom Springer, a civil attorney for the U.S. Navy, will discuss "Proposition 15: Why You Should Vote Yes" at the Eleanor Roosevelt Democratic Club program today at 7:45 p.m. in San Dimas.

The program will be held at the Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association building, 165 E. Bonita Ave. Proposition 15 is the state nuclear power plant initiative.

Springer is a graduate of the Naval Reactor Training School in Idaho and served six years on a nuclear submarine.

New club officers have been elected. They are Estelle Roberts, president; Lou Gentile, vice president; Rene Bartlett, treasurer; Eulalie Ebert, secretary; Steven Ross, corresponding secretary; Myron Roberts, newsletter; Cathy Ross, social secretary; Richard Underwood, legislation and resolutions; Helen Lossing, telephone; Lynette Doyle, membership; Lori McCarthy, publicity; Mary Harper, parliamentarian; Buena Lance, raffles and rummage sales; and Kay Nelson, "sunshine."

Opposition leader in Chino apartment dispute to resign

Admitting that she has been roundly criticized by her own group, Sandra Stokes, chairman for Chinoans Acting for Responsible Environment (CARE) said today she is resigning from her position.

Mrs. Stokes, who headed the homeowners' group opposing a planned 72-unit apartment complex at Mountain Avenue and Riverside Drive, indicated she will offer her resignation at a CARE meeting Sunday night, in which new officers will be chosen.

She said the main reason for her resignation is that she has been denounced by CARE members for "losing my cool" in heated verbal exchanges with the City Council over the apartment issue.

"I will never compromise my principles," said Mrs. Stokes. "I can't pat the council on the back. If that's what CARE wants, it is best I resign and do my thing as an individual."

Mrs. Stokes will continue as a CARE member, but she will not be as active in the group as before.

She admits the battle over the apartments is "seemingly lost" in that the council has refused to take action to halt the development. There also have been reports that CARE's membership is dwindling.

"I think it will become a social club now rather than a political group, and I don't need a social club." CARE will no longer be in the limelight, she claimed.

"I've given 100 per cent to this issue," added Mrs. Stokes, "and I will continue as a concerned citizen."

However, Mrs. Stokes indicated there is nothing more that residents can do to stop the apartments.

John Kemmerer, a member of the CARE executive board and a close ally of Mrs. Stokes, also will resign at Sunday's meeting.

Church enters race for president

By The Associated Press

Ronald Reagan, his challenge to President Ford shaken by a fifth straight setback, was in North Carolina today to prepare for the next of the primary elections, while Democrats — also gearing up for North Carolina — prepare for a new contender.

Sen. Frank Church summoned backers to the mountain mining town of Idaho City today to enter the run for the Democratic nomination. Church, noting his late start, compared his campaign to the race of the tortoise against the hare.

"Like I'm doing, he started slowly but came on strong to win," the Idaho senator declared.

Church picked Idaho City to enter the race for the Democratic nomination for sentimental reasons. His grandfather settled here after the Civil War. And, in 1940, his father-in-law announced his candidacy for governor of Idaho from a platform in Idaho City.

Church, 51, said his first goal will be the Nebraska primary May 11 — after the April 6 primaries in New York and Wisconsin.

Church has made it clear his strategy is based on a strong showing late in the game — and arrival at the Democratic National Convention this summer with a sizable bloc of delegates. As the long primary election campaign wears on, he has said, others are sure to run into financial trouble.

Church entered the Senate nearly 20 years ago and ranks 13th in seniority. He was recently in the public spotlight with the intelligence committee inquiry and with a subcommittee's probe of bribes paid by American firms abroad.

Prior to that, he was best known as a leader of the antiwar movement in Congress. He coauthored the 1970 Cooper-Church amendment barring use of American combat troops in Cambodia.

He voted for an amendment to bar funds to support American troops in Indochina after 1971 and also opposed development of supersonic transports and a national no-fault auto insurance program.

Church joins a half-dozen major contendors for the Democratic nomination, including California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., who got into the race last week.

Alabama Gov. George Wallace, whose campaign for the Democratic nomination — like Reagan's on the Republican side — has been staggered by early primary losses, was on the stump in North Carolina Wednesday, ahead of the others.

Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter was due in the state today. He has defeated Wallace in primaries in Massachusetts, Florida and, on Tuesday, Illinois.

The two Southerners are on the Democratic ballot in North Carolina along with Washington Sen. Henry M. Jackson, Arizona Rep. Morris K. Udall, former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, who dropped out of the race

For Jackson and Udall, however, April 6 primaries in New York and Wisconsin are getting the emphasis.

Reagan arrived in Greensboro, N.C., Wednesday to begin a campaign he hopes will reverse Ford's domination of the early primaries. Ford is expected in the state for a week-end of campaigning.

The President's supporters in Washington and North Carolina were quick to predict that a sixth Reagan loss would all but end the former California governor's challenge.

Reagan, accompanied by actor Jimmy Stewart, said he is determined to continue his run for the nomination.

"I got in this to go all the way," he said. "We are doing better than our original projections and I am going ahead with what I have been doing."

50 years in show biz for Crosby

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singing in fine mellow style, Bing Crosby celebrated St. Patrick's Day and his "demicentennial in show business" by performing the first concert of his career.

The 71-year-old singer seemed close to tears Wednesday night as a standing ovation greeted his performance at the Music Center.

It was the first of several concerts he plans to give for charity in this country and later this year in London.

"I decided to get back in the swim," Crosby told his audience. "One of the things that made me decide was when I came out of NBC's artists' entrance one day and somebody asked me, 'Didn't you used to be Bing Crosby?'"

Crosby, who had curtailed his career in recent years, seemed to enjoy himself immensely.

"It was just 50 years ago this month that my partner Al Rinker and I got a job at the Boulevard Theater here," Crosby told his audience. "The theater was close to the USC campus and a lot of the college boys and girls dropped in to see how a couple of guys from Spokane were doing. They were a big help, and ever since then I've rooted for USC — except when they play Notre Dame, of course."

Brothers held in car burglaries

Two Ontario brothers were booked in West End Jail this morning by Upland police investigating a series of auto burglaries in the Casa Del Rey apartment complex between Spencer and Stillman avenues early this morning.

Wally Edward Womack, 20, of 821 Amador Ave., and his brother Wesley Allen Womack, 22, of 518 Florence Ave., were booked in the West End Jail for investigation of burglary in the incidents.

Officer Daniel Mendoza became suspicious of the two suspects after making a traffic stop near Seventh Street and Spencer about 12:30 a.m. The officer found a tape deck and a car radio in the suspects' vehicle.

When the men could not explain the radio, Mendoza and other officers conducted a further investigation. Officers found three persons from the apartment complex who reported that their cars had been burglarized. An AM-FM radio tape deck was taken from one of the vehicles.

A youthful would-be robber walked away late Wednesday morning after confronting a LA VERNE dairy owner with a rifle and ordering him inside the building.

The victim, Leo Carrico, 53, owner of Leo's Dairy at 1300 Bonita Ave., said he found the young man putting on a ski mask and rubber gloves outside the place shortly before 10:30. The youth also had a small-caliber rifle and ordered Carrico back inside the dairy. But when Carrico entered, the young man failed to follow and left, officer Jim Carwford said.

The youth was black, 16 to 18, 5 feet 10 with thin build.

Church victimized

Joyce Stockman of the Pioneer Baptist Chruch, 845 E. E St., ONTARIO, complained to police Tuesday that burglars broke into the church and stole an amplifier, microphone and speakers with a total value of $1,300.

Officers determined that the burglars gained entrance to the church by picking a door lock.

Woman raped

ONTARIO police are seeking a man who after forcing his way into a home on Bon View Avenue Saturday night raped a 28-year-old woman.

Police said the rapist forced the woman's 5-year-old daughter to lay beside him and her mother as he forcibly raped the woman. Officers said the rapist threatened to harm the little girl unless the woman submitted.

The rapist was described as a black, 6 feet tall, 200 pounds, wearing a Levi jacket and pants. He had a one inch afro haircut.

Car windows shot

UPLAND police this morning continued their search for youths who shot out numerous car windows in the 1400 block of N. Second Street between 8 and 10 p.m. Tuesday night.

Second Street residents began calling in the malicious mischief reports about 10 p.m. Tuesday. Officers said at least eight cars were damaged by the vandals, believed using a pellet gun.

3 held in car break-in

Two men and a 17-year-old youth were arrested by CHINO police after the trio allegedly were seen breaking into a car parked in the 12600 block of Jalpeno Street this morning.

According to police, George Joseph Anderson, 19; David Wayne Williams, 19, and the youth, all of Riverside, were apprehended by officers moments after they had removed a portable television set from the seat of the car owned by William Easting of Chino. The trio was booked in the Chino Jail.

Police said a resident in the area saw the three prying open a window of the vehicle and called officers.

Youth caught

A 17-year-old Ontario youth caught inside of the Shady Grove Dairy at Seventh Street and Grove Avenue in ONTARIO Tuesday night by the store manager was petitioned to juvenile authorities on a charge of burglary.

Police said the youth was apprehended by the dairy manager, Leighton Keltz, 49, making a routine security check of the business. Keltz said he caught the youth coming out of the dairy store and grabbed him.

Police arrived moments later and took the youth into custody. Officers found that he had forced his way into the store by prying up a sliding glass door. Officers recovered about $4 in food items taken by the youth.

Fillmore fire under control

FILLMORE (AP) — A fire that blackened 300 acres in the Los Padres National Forest has been brought under control and erosion control and reseeding was to begin.

The fire was pronounced contained and under control Wednesday morning after fire fighters, working faster than anticipated, closed the line around the blaze. Containment had not been expected until that night.

Rockwell entertained Joint Chiefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rockwell International, the defense contractor developing the B1 bomber, played host to the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and almost 100 other military officials at hunting and recreation facilities in recent years, company records show.

A list of 44 persons who traveled to Rockwell facilities between 1972 and 1976 was delivered Wednesday to the Joint Committee on Defense Production. Fifty-five other names were released late last year.

Adm. Thomas Moorer, who was chairman of the Joint Chiefs, and Adm. Vincent Depoix, who headed the Defense Intelligence Agency, topped the new list. Both now are retired.

An aide to Sen. William Proxmire, vice chairman of the committee, said Rockwell estimated that entertaining military brass at its Wye Island, Md., hunting lodge alone has cost the firm more than $50,000.

A presidential order issued in the late 1960s prohibits federal employes from accepting gratuities from individuals or firms with which they have contact as government officials. It also bars conduct which could raise the appearance of conflicts of interest.

Of those on Rockwell's list, "a number appear to have procurement or research and development functions at the Pentagon," said Proxmire aide Ron Tammen.

In a letter hand-delivered to Proxmire, Rockwell identified Moorer as one of several dozen military officials who accepted at least one trip to its Wye Island camp in Eastern Maryland between 1972 and 1976.

Fireman fumes; files nude photo suit

MIAMI (AP) — Bill Cashman, a fireman, says he didn't mind posing nude for a centerfold in a magazine for women who like men. But he's got a $2-million objection to use of the picture by a magazine for men who like men.

Cashman, 26, said Wednesday he decided to pose nude for Playgirl magazine "as a grin. I figured, what the hell, if they wanted to use me, I'd do it."

But he said when one of the pictures showed up in a promotional brochure for Blueboy, the fun began to wear off.

"The whole thing has gotten out of hand," said Cashman. "I thought I'd get a lot of laughs out of it (Playgirl). I figured I could meet a few stray chicks through it."

Then one of the shots — from Blueboy — was tacked to the firehouse wall — "Station Two pinup of the month."

"Right away people think I'm gay," Cashman said.

It was about then Cashman went into circuit court against photographer David Vance and Blueboy, a Miami-based magazine.

Cashman said in the lawsuit that he has been "embarrassed, ridiculed, held up to public scorn and shame and suffered a loss of income and a loss of earning capacity" because of the Blueboy brochures.

He said readers of Blueboy and the brochures "would naturally associate" him with people of "aberrant sexual behavior."

Cashman said that when Vance took the pictures in 1973, the agreement was to use the poses-in-the-buff only in Playgirl and in a photographer's book of nudes Vance was compiling.

He said Playgirl editors contacted him after getting Vance's photos and "wanted to use me as a centerfold model, but they wanted to shoot their own pictures." He said he earned $700 from Playgirl and appeared under the assumed name of Bill Douglas.

But he said photos in the other publications have caused problems — like the modeling assignment for a National Dairy Association commercial that fell through because "they needed a red-blooded, all-American type guy."

An attorney for Blueboy said Cashman's suit is "wholly without merit" and would be challenged. Vance would only say that Cashman can "allege whatever he wants."

"I wish the whole thing never happened," said Cashman.

Henry Fonda has tumor removed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Henry Fonda was reported in satisfactory condition today after undergoing lengthy surgery to remove a large nonmalignant tumor near the diaphragm, a family spokesman says.

Doctors said after the 7½-hour operation late Wednesday that the 70-year-old actor probably would be released from Cedars of Lebanon Hospital within 10 days.

They said the tumor had grown to the size of two grapefruits within a four-month period, the spokesman reported.

Gold found in trailrace

COLOMA, Calif. (AP) — It was James W. Marshall who picked up some yellow mineral he found in the trailrace of John Sutter's sawmill on the American River the morning of Jan. 24, 1848. The result was a gold rush.

Marshall, however, died a pauper, unable to establish a claim of his own to some of the gold-rich areas. He entered a series of bad business projects and went heavily into debt.

In 1890 the State Legislature built a monument to Marshall overlooking the spot where he found the gold.

Xerox employes get leaves with pay

...He'll help remodel community gym

Joe Hidalgo, a Pomona manufacturing engineer, will be leaving his job soon to remodel a gymnasium in San Gabriel.

Hidalgo, 39, was one of 26 Xerox Corp. employes granted full-pay, full-time leaves from their jobs to pursue self-chosen projects with community agencies.

Hidalgo will be working at the La Casa Community Center in San Gabriel. He will plan, supervise and work himself, painting the old gym, repairing the roof, installing electrical fixtures, framing and putting up partitions.

His four months involvement in the Xerox Social Service Leave Program begins in May.

Hidalgo, who joined Xerox in 1966 as a tool designer, now supervises a tool design group for Electro-Optical Systems (EOS) in Pomona.

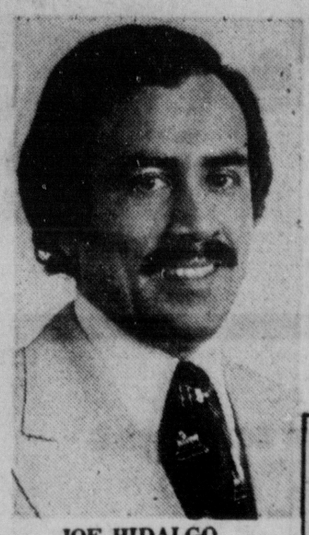
For the past year and a half he has been active in another Xerox employe activity, the Xerox Community Involvement Program, where he reconstructed a community playground.

Hidalgo said he grew up helping his parents remodel the many homes the family lived in and has recently remodeled his own home. He is currently working toward a contractor's license.

He feels that refurbishing the gym for the La Casa Community Center is important because the youth in the area have few opportunities for wholesome recreation. He hopes when his work is completed a way will be found to outfit the gym with sports equipment.

Xerox Corp.'s Social Service Leave Program is in its fifth year and more than 130 people from Xerox affiliates in the United States and Europe have taken leaves from three to 12 months since the program began.

Following their leaves, the employes are guaranteed the same or equal jobs on return to Xerox with the same pay, responsibility, status and opportunity for advancement.



JOE HIDALGO

...She'll recruit health volunteers

Mary Louise Grant, a Pomona electronics assembler, will leave her job at Xerox Electro-Optical Systems next month to help recruit volunteers for the Pomona Center of the Los Angeles County Department of Public Health.

Mrs. Grant, 22, is one of 26 Xerox Corp. employes granted full-pay, full-time leaves from their jobs to pursue self-chosen projects with community agencies.

She will work for eight months at the health center as a volunteer program coordinator. A major part of her job will be speaking at schools, colleges, community meetings and senior citizen groups explaining the need for volunteers to help in the clinics at the center.

Married and the mother of three children, Mrs. Grant is the youngest employe granted a leave this year. The leaves are granted to Xerox employes in nine states who apply for the special social service leave to work with existing, nonprofit organizations.

Following her leave, she will return to the same or an equal job at Xerox with the same pay, responsibility, status and opportunity for advancement.

Fitness course among ideas raised for park in Ontario

A physical fitness course, swimming pool and picnic area are proposed for the San Antonio Park being developed on San Antonio Avenue at D Street in Ontario.

Under an agreement with the Ontario-Montclair School District, the city is developing the site once occupied by the San Antonio Elementary School.

Because the school building didn't comply with the state's earthquake standards, the structure was recently demolished.

The agreement, however, stipulates that the city not construct any permanent structures on an area being reserved for a new school building should student population require this, said Dennis Wilkins, assistant city manager.

Proposed development of the site was recently discussed in workshops attended by area residents. The proposed plan will be presented Monday night to the city's Parks and Recreation Commission.

If approved here, a master plan would be sent to the City Council and school board for adoption. Estimated cost of the project is $108,000. Officials have indicated they will include funding for the park development — except for a swimming pool and restrooms — in the next fiscal budget.

During workshop discussions, residents indicated a desire to develop a physical fitness course around the park's perimeter, said Wilkins.

This would include a jogging track with 10 to 15 "stations" where participants would be directed to do pushups, chinups and various other exercises.

Silkins also plans to develop a children's play area near the picnic tables by using school ground equipment left on the site. These include monkey bars and swings.

The play equipment is being relocated from the site's northeast corner where it had been in conflict with adjacent homes.

The proposal plan also includes the resurfacing of an area for tennis courts. These would be used only during the day.

The park plan also proposes one athletic field for softball and baseball games. The backstop would be moved from the northeast corner to near the center of the 4.4 acre site and point in a northeast direction. This again would remove activity away from the homes, he explained.

The school site has numerous mature trees which will be used in development of a picnic area. A parking lot is planned for the eastern sector to keep arriving and departing traffic from the heavily traveled San Antonio Avenue, said Wilkins.

The Parks and Recreation commission will meet Monday at 7 p.m. in the City Council chambers.

Chess tourney scheduled at Ganesha for students

A city-wide student tournament for unrated chess players will be held March 27 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Bungalow 8 at Ganesha High School in Pomona.

It is being sponsored by Miss Colette Felder, special education teacher at Ganesha and sponsor of the 20-member Ganesha High School Chess Club.

Purpose of the tournament, she said, is to enhance the knowledge of chess in the community, and give Ganesha players a chance to meet students from other schools.

Play will be open to those under 18 who know the game well enough to play. Judging will be held in four age categories: elementary age, junior high age, 10th and 11th graders, and 12th graders.

There will be trophies, prizes, refreshments and entertainment.

An entry fee of $3 per player will be asked. Players will bring their own chess sets.

Bungalow 8 is on the south side of the Ganesha High School campus.

Woman, 28, accused of 16 bank robberies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 28-year-old Los Angeles woman faces arraignment Monday on a grand jury indictment charging her with 16 bank robberies in Southern California during the last three months.

Assistant U. S. Atty. Norman D. James said Tuesday that Jo Ann Ford was indicted in holdups which occurred between Dec. 8 and Feb. 23. The take from the holdups was estimated at nearly $19,000.

Investigators said the woman surrendered last month and is being held on $100,000 bail.

L.V. may lower the boom

La Verne may abandon an ordinance passed six years ago that permits the sale and discharge of fireworks within the city.

The withdrawal of the ordinance is urged by Fire Chief Robert Lapp who says injuries were barely averted in two accidents last July 4.

He said one incident involved a child playing with a sparkler in the closet of a two-story house, and the other concerned juveniles who set fire to a display stand.

Right now several fraternal organizations are allowed to sell fireworks in La Verne on the weekend which precedes Independence Day.

Lapp's request was taken under advisement by the City Council and will be brought up for action in four weeks.

Mayor Mike M. Morales said he felt the two accidents last year were not overly significant. "There were accidents before, and there will be more. You can't prevent them all."

He questioned the wisdom of prohibiting the sale of the fireworks because "you may send those who buy the sparklers into hiding. I think it's much better to have it out in the open."

Nevada desert had a subway

EUREKA, Nev. (AP) — It may be hard to believe, but there once was a subway in the Nevada desert.

Under the hills of Eureka, a once-bustling mining town in the Diamond Mountains, a subway was dug connecting the town's two breweries with its saloons. Several stores, a school and some homes also had access to the tunnel.

All that remains today is a short section under a hotel.

Schools eye bilingual job plan to help underemployed

Spanish-speaking students in Pomona's public high schools may be trained for the job market in Spanish next year.

The school board has authorized administrators to apply for a $191,908 federal grant to fund a bilingual vocational training program in 1976-77.

In the application, which is signed by Ray L. Thomas, assistant superintendent of educational services, administrators explain that they are addressing "the serious problem of underemployment of Spanish-speaking peoples."

Also, the project would reinforce the student's desire to remain in school, they say.

Administrators say that bilingual aides skilled or semi-skilled would be utilized to transmit their knowledge to Spanish-speaking students.

Under the grant, "bilingual students would be encouraged to select an industrial arts or vocational program based on their interests and abilities."

The application outlines courses in graphic arts, industrial arts, business arts and agricultural science.

In identifying target groups, administrators point out in the application that 5,134 of Pomona's 20,560 public school students are Spanish surnamed, 24.97 per cent of the student totals. A large percentage of these are non or limited English-speaking.

At Garey High School, for example, there are 758 Spanish surnamed students of whom 207 are identified as non or limited English speaking.

The application also stipulates that under terms of the Bilingual Education Act of 1972 in California, not more than two-thirds of those accepted into the program would be non or limited English speaking. One-third would be non-Spanish speaking.

Parent involvement would be a requirement for participation by a student. Job placement, upon completion of a course, would be a part of the program.

Panel may change bus request

The technical committee of the West Valley Transit Service Authority will consider the number and types of buses that might be acquired in an operating grant from the Urban Mass Transit Authority.

Mike Walker of the county Transportation Department asked the committee of West End city managers to draft suggestions for a revised application to the federal agency submitted several months ago. The application asked specifically for six new buses to cover public transit in Chino, Montclair, Ontario and Upland.

Conditions have changed slightly, said Walker, and it is necessary for the group to revise the plan before a final decision from UMTA.

The federal transit agency has been sitting on the grant, said Walker, in anticipation of the merger of the county transit operation and San Bernardino Transit Systems into the new Omnitrans agency.

The six buses were to be divided with three for the Chino dial-a-ride, now defunct; two buses for an Upland-Ontario dial-a-ride, already underway with private contract to a taxi company; and one back-up.

"In the update process we must determine the use of these buses and the type of buses. In revising the plan, you can change from the mini-bus (18 passenger count) to the midi-bus (30 passenger count)," said Walker.

The WVTSA now has nine buses in the West End and surrounding county areas. Eight of these are being paid for through the buy-in process in forming Omnitrans, and will belong to WVTSA.

"We must make up our minds first, do we want six buses? Secondly, do we want this size?" Walker commented.

Walker suggested that the Ontario-Upland route with four buses be increased to a two-way loop requiring six buses to pick up service for east side traffic; Montclair go to a two-bus operation with two-way service; the Chino-Montclair and Chino-Los Serranos and Alta Loma routes remain the same with one bus each; a bus be drafted for Chino along Central Avenue; a demand-response medical van be established on a 24-hour call ahead basis; and one spare bus serve as backup to the total system.

The committee will draft the provisions of the application at its April meeting and present the application to the WVTSA board for approval.

Hearing slated on plan to recycle dairy waste

Proposed construction of a pilot plant to recycle dairy wastes into cattle feed will be discussed at a public hearing on March 24.

Officials of the Chino Basin Municipal Water District (CBMWD); which proposes to construct the plant, will hear final comments on the environmental impact during a public hearing set for 2 p.m. in the district office, 8555 Archibald Ave., Cucamonga.

In addition, written comments will continue to be received through April 2, said E. Gil Ross, district manager.

Following the hearings, the district will draft the final environmental impact reports and submit these to various city, county and state officials involved.

The plant is planned at the district's regional sewage treatment plant near Archibald Avenue and the Pomona Freeway in Ontario.

Since the area is isolated from residential or commercial development, Ross sees little opposition to the environmental aspect.

"We decided to locate the plant here so we could use methane gas from our other sewage treatment facilities and also it is near dairies that will be served," said Ross.

Officials hope to begin construction next June, with construction taking three to four months. The cost is estimated at between $50,000 and $700,000. Funds were included in a bond issue recently approved by district voters.

The district has signed a contract with the Ceres Ecology Corp. of Sterling, Colo., which owns the processing method.

The pilot plant will be able to process solid wastes from about 10,000 cows into silage for non-dairy animals such as beef cattle, pellets for hogs, chickens and fish and also manufacture a soil conditioner.

The operation will assist in solving a serious salt imbalance caused by the manure, said Ross. At present, the district's underground basin has about 86,000 tons of salt accumulated annually. A large portion results from the 140,000 dairy cows concentrated on 17,000 acres.

In connection with the recycling plant, the district is seeking $137,000 in state and federal funds to conduct an 18-month feed trial to determine the effects of feeding the plant products to nondairy animals.

The project, involving specialists in feed and animals, would include the mixing of recycled feed with normal feed. For the test period, plant feed may be shipped from Colorado or temporary processing equipment could be set up, said Ross.

"Environmentally," said Ross, "we believe the plant operation will help solve an odor problem by removing manure from stockpiles."

No manure will be stockpiled at the pilot plant, he added. "Everything brought in will be processed immediately."

A PLEA FOR HELP

John Baerg, executive secretary of Liga International Inc. — "The Flying Doctors of Mercy" — examines some of the supplies donated for earthquake victims in Guatemala.

Mercy group, loaded with aid, needs a lift—from trucker

An organization sometimes known as "The Flying Doctors of Mercy," has gathered additional supplies for the earthquake victims of Guatemala and is appealing to local trucking companies to supply a 40-foot van to transport the supplies.

Liga International, Inc., a Montclair-based philanthropic league of physicians, dentists and others, made the appeal to get the medical supplies, clothes, blankets, kitchen utensils, food, hospital beds and incubators to the Central American country.

"We have enough to fill a 40-foot van and we have the money to buy the diesel fuel and pay the driver," said Liga executive secretary John Baerg. "But we need a truck in order to get it all there. The owner of the truck will be able to get a tax-write off for the loan. If the driver doesn't speak Spanish, I'll be along to assist him."

Liga, Spanish for "league" or those coming together for a common cause, is headquartered in Montclair and has an international membership. It began in 1932 and has been in the forefront of assistance in crises throughout the world.

Among Liga's programs are free clinics in Mexico, New Guinea, India, Africa and the South Pacific Islands; a food factory near Navojoa, Sonora, Mexico; television programs on health topics in Spanish; scholarships to underprivileged youth throughout the world to study medicine and dentistry; and assistance to hurricane victims in Honduras.

"Our purpose as a charity organization is to sponsor projects dealing with medical help to the poor and educational projects, especially in agriculture," Baerg said.

Liga, reported Baerg, is currently raising $40,000 to build an orphanage about 200 miles from Guatemala City.

"We already have half of the money in hand. People really respond when they know what the needs are. They help. We have 1,500 acres of land with half of it in forest. The elevation is 2,500 feet. It has an ideal climate and plenty of water," Baerg said.

When the earthquake first hit in February, the organization sent the most urgent medical supplies and clothing by plane. Various airlines transported the supplies free of charge.

However, the amount and weight of additional loads gathered from throughout the Pacific Northwest require transporting by truck. There are several tons accumulated now and more is on the way, including large medical donations from an association of 17 hospitals in the western states.

"People have been wonderful, but we desperately need a truck. And I have high hopes that we will get one," said Baerg.

Anyone wishing to loan a truck may call Baerg at 624-6896. Persons making cash or supply donations should send them to Liga International Inc., Box 53, Montclair 91763.

Car hits boy playing ball in the street

A 12-year-old boy who was playing ball in the street was hit by a car and dragged 54 feet late Wednesday afternoon in Pomona.

The victim, Raymond Sanchez, was struck by a car driven by Harry W. Stone, 77, Pomona, who told police he was blinded by the late-afternoon sun and did not see the boy before hitting him.

Officers reported that the victim was playing ball in the middle of Sixth Street near Towne Avenue with Danny Fierro, 18, and was running when he was struck. He suffered scalp and facial cuts and possible internal injuries and was reported in serious condition today in Pomona Valley Community Hospital's intensive care unit.

Bike rider hurt

A young bicycle rider was injured Wednesday evening in Pomona when he was struck by a car which was abandoned at the scene by the driver, police reported.

The victim, Augustus Maurice Horton, 8, Pomona, was struck while riding at Phillips Boulevard near San Antonio Avenue. He was taken to the Pomona Medical Group for treatment of abrasions of his legs.

Police said they located the driver of the car about an hour later, but did not arrest him pending further investigation. They did impound the car.

Bids for storm drainage open

Bids will be opened Friday by the Los Angeles County Flood Control District for a storm drain project in Industry that is expected to cost about $1.4 million.

The project will consist of two lines designed to relieve flooding in the area during the stormy season, according to Supervisor Peter Schabarum.

Line A will be built in Giano Avenue and in private rights-of-way between the permanent channel improvement of San Jose Creek south of Valley Boulevard.

Line B will be constructed in Honore Street and in Killian Avenue.

Work is expected to start in April and will take about nine months to complete.

Dog that bit Diamond Bar boy sought

Stitches were required to close the wound in John Schaeck's leg, and if the dog that bit him a week ago isn't located by Friday, the boy will have to undergo painful anti-rabies treatments —a series of 21 shots administered one a day.

John, 13, 1171 N. Del Sol Lane, Diamond Bar, was bitten March 10 while helping his brother, William, 12, complete his newspaper route collections. The boys were walking along Flintlock Road when the dog, described as a gray Weimaraner, severely bit John on the back of the right leg, just below the knee.

He was treated at San Dimas Community Hospital and released.

The wound appears to be healing, but the doctor said if the dog is not found by Friday, he will begin the anti-rabies treatments.

John described the Weimaraner as short, with broad shoulders.

He thinks it may live in the Diamond Point area of Diamond Bar.

Anyone with information regarding the dog is asked to call the Pomona Health Center at 623-6811.

Pomona school grading policies raise questions, some criticism

Methods used to grade students in Pomona's public high schools has come under close scrutiny, and some criticism, from the school board.

During Tuesday's board meeting, where information on the methods used was provided to board members, they agreed that grading should be returned as an agenda item at a future meeting.

The policy at Garey High School, which until just recently did not use the "F" or fail grade was most severely criticized.

"Students have a right to fail," said board member C. Allen Braswell. "And, too, I am concerned that this system may jeopardize a student's chances in college."

Before the "F" was returned to its grading system, Garey gave no grade — no credit, eliminating failure for its students. Garey still does not include attendance as part of a student's grade.

At Ganesha, "F" is used and 18 days of unexcused absence in one semester lowers a student's grade.

At Pomona High, a student must attend at least 80 per cent of the time to earn a passing grade and any teacher giving credit to a student absent more than 20 per cent of the time must justify that action.

Park Avenue uses a contract system with students. They agree to complete a specific amount of work, at a specified level, and are allowed to work at their own speed. Attendance is not utilized in determining student achievement.

Tampering with freedom

"The essential meaning of freedom of the press is that editors — not judges or any other public officials — should determine what to publish."

These words were part of a report published Monday by a blue ribbon committee of editors and lawyers angered over the current trend of judges' overstepping legal bounds (and trampling the U.S. Constitution) by issuing gag orders concerning information on upcoming trials.

Sponsored by the Twentieth Century Fund, the report could not have been better timed for Pomona Valley residents.

Late last week, Judge Paul Egly, presiding Superior Court Judge of the Pomona branch of Los Angeles Superior Court, issued a gag order in a divorce case barring both parties in the suit from talking to the press. Not surprisingly, the case involves a politician, Sen. Alfred H. Song (D-Monterey Park) who serves on the local government committee in the State Senate and a person who could influence operations of such governments, including county courts.

To be sure, the Song divorce may be a complicated one, but there is no need for a gag order. In fact, quite the opposite is true since Song is a public official and not a private citizen. Judge Egly should encourage press coverage rather than attempt to impede it.

(Song, as you remember, is the state official who allowed his wife to use his state owned car and credit cards at taxpayers' expense.)

But Judge Egly, who is dean of La Verne College's law school charged with teaching would-be barristers constitutional principles, apparently needs to bone up on the first amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

For the jurist's refreshment, that amendment forbids the government from tampering with freedom of the press, speech or religion.

Judge Egly defended his judicial edict by denying it was a gag order. He said he ordered both parties from using the news media to harass one another.

But this order violates the First Amendment two ways; i.e., it denies Sen. and Mrs. Song free speech and effectively cuts off press access to information on the case — both guarantees by the First Amendment.

What Judge Egly says he is attempting to do is a job best left to editors concerning whether an item is newsworthy.

The jurist in his gag order implied he more than editors knows what is news. We dispute that.

In fact we'll make the judge a deal:

We won't don judicial robes and hand down decisions in his court if he will remove himself from our city desk.

BSA alters emphasis

Like any other organization that wants to stay in business, the Boy Scouts of America has had to change with the times.

The current Scouting Handbook is a drastic departure from the one that generations of older Americans knew, with less emphasis on wilderness lore and more on the problems of modern, everyday living.

In an effort to reach youngsters from low-income families, especially in the inner cities, the BSA is also developing a series of lively booklets geared toward "skill" awards that have nothing to do with tying knots or reading semaphore signals.

In the "Family Living Skill Book," for example, Scouts are shown how to inspect their home for such hazards as unlit oven pilot lights, trash and garbage wrongly stored, rats and roaches, poisons and drugs.

The list of merit badges also reflects the changing times. Among 10 new badges available to Scouts last year was one called "Consumer Buying."

The traditional goal of Scouting, however, remains what it has always been — to mold character and build useful citizens.

The reptile or the egg?

The old question of which came first, the chicken or the egg, has finally been solved. Or at least scientists have arrived at some kind of consensus, reports the National Geographic Society.

Since reptiles were laying eggs long before chickens appeared, the first chicken must have come from an egg laid by a reptilish bird that had not quite developed into a chicken.

Unfortunately, this only pushes the question back a few million years. It now becomes: Which came first, the reptile or the reptile egg?

Mother wants children

Dear Editor:

I just read about a man who has been sitting in a Los Angeles jail for the past 47 days, because he won't tell where the children are that he took from his wife.

Well, it's too bad he isn't a resident of Pomona. If he lived here it is entirely possible to steal up to three (3) small children from school, flee with them across state lines (to Florida), change their names, and remain at large with them for over three years (until apprehended on a traffic violation) and then be set free with a $250 fine.

There are other benefits to stealing children from their mother in Pomona and not Los Angeles. First, the courts will plea bargain a small fine, even though you may be charged with six felonies with a possible outcome of 120 years. This happens even though it is the third time you have stolen the kids. Second, the courts and the Pomona Police Department will refuse to accept a complaint from the mother after he has been fined the $250 and disappears with the children, again. The $250 apparently buys his immunity from the law, even though the mother continues to have the legal custody.

I am the mother of these missing children. I have written to the Commissioner who heard this case in Pomona Superior Court on 27 February, asking him to tell the Pomona Police to accept a complaint from me for felony child stealing, so as to put the State Police out looking for my children all-over-again. The Commissioner doesn't choose to reply.

So I guess going to the public through the newspapers and other media, letters to the governor, attorney general, congressmen and senators, etc. is all that is left for me.

How can the courts be so tough in one case, and so cruel in another? — Joann Duncan, Pomona

Cafeteria to the rescue

Dear Editor:

Many people called me about the great article George MacLaren did on my alligators. In fact, about 15 people sent me the clipping.

The reason for this letter is to reinforce the old "power of the press" adage. The Crystal Cafeteria at 260 W. Holt Ave. in Pomona has come to my aid.

Prior to your article all of their chicken necks were ground up and disposed of. The cafeteria is owned by Harold and Bernadine Denny and they graciously have and are donating all the chicken necks to the "great alligator cause."

One of their employes, Marsha Lott of Fontana, even delivers them once a week on her way home. My freezer is full and as the alligators start eating in April you can see how pleased I am. — Jackie Jacobsen, Claremont

Oil pipeline cost soars

WASHINGTON — The cost of building the Alaskan pipeline has soared so far beyond estimates that it may add millions to the price Americans must pay for petroleum products.

Back in 1969, when the pipeline was proposed, the oil companies informed the public that it would cost only $900 million. These companies formed a giant consortium, called the Alyeska Pipeline Co., to lay the 800-mile oil conduit.

Alyeska now estimates it will cost $5.7 billion to complete the project. That's a whopping six times the original estimate.

But sources close to the project now tell us the final construction cost may top $10 billion. Staggering waste, thefts and union featherbedding, according to our sources, have sent the costs into orbit.

The scandalous cost overruns simply will be added to the price that the oil companies will charge for Alaskan oil. Some experts already estimate that the price will hit $14 a barrel.

Congress will set the final figure, but it will be guided by President Ford's recommendation. He will depend heavily on the Federal Energy Administration, which will conduct a study to determine a fair price for Alaskan crude. In the past, both the President and Congress have listened sympathetically to the oil industry's hard luck stories.

Footnote: An Alyeska spokesman told us the company expects to hold the cost to the $5.7 billion estimate. He claimed increasing efficiency will bring price stabilization. He blamed environmental safeguards and skyrocketing inflation for the cost increases.

DIRTY TRICKS: From our three-year investigation of Watergate, we found that the dirty tricks usually originated somewhere on the political right. Invariably, we would trace the deliberate distortions and dirty tactics to some right-wing cultist.

The extremists of the right are still practicing Watergate-style politics. We were alerted to this by the New York Public Interest Research Group (NYPIRG), which has conducted a two-month investigation of the scare campaign against the Equal Rights Amendment in New York State.

This amendment merely strengthens the constitutional guarantee of equal rights for women. So far, 34 states have ratified it, but four more states must vote their approval by 1979 for the amendment to become part of the Constitution.

New York voters beat down the Equal Rights Amendment to a surprising defeat last November. NYPIRG tried to find out why. We have confirmed their findings, which will be published soon. The right-wing John Birch Society, for example, intentionally trumpeted false arguments to scare people into voting against the amendment. The society's literature claims the amendment would make homosexual marriages legal, would outlaw separate public restroom facilities and would eliminate the separate state's authority over marriage, divorce and child care. The Senate Judiciary Committee has refused these claims.

To dramatize the false charges, the right-wing claque played key roles in Operation Wake-Up, which raised the phony specter of a unisex bathroom. One agitator, Mary Ann Sanscrainte, dressed herself up as a "common toilet." On her outhouse costume, she crossed out the words "his" and "hers" and substituted the single word "theirs."

In New York City, Fred Christopher, president of the Westside Conservative Club, conducted a campaign that he candidly called "agitation work." For example, he clipped a magazine photo of an all-male wedding party and Xeroxed it onto thousands of leaflets attacking the Equal Rights Amendment.

Although the wedding had absolutely no connection with the constitutional issue, Christopher's little trick made it appear that a vote for the amendment was a vote for homosexual marriages. Christopher conceded to us that he personally had passed out the misleading leaflets on a Broadway street corner.

Other anti-ERA literature featured neuterized half-male, half-female people, referred to the amendment as the "Common Toilet Law" and urged voters against the "unisex amendment."

These exaggerated statements and illustrations were designed for maximum shock value, without regard for the truth, in the Watergate tradition.

Paul Harvey

Now for civil responsibilities

It's a little early to say that Jesse Jackson is the man, but the civil rights movement in the United States — indeed, in the world — needs to be led in a new direction and he is going to try. The fight for civil rights has been fought and won. Now for "civil responsibilities."

History says that self-government without self-discipline won't work. One after another of our American freedoms have been forfeited — including getting on an airliner unsearched — because some who are free misuse that freedom.

Self-government without self-discipline, like an angry scorpion, turns on itself and dies of its own sting. In Chicago we've watched the Rev. Jesse Jackson for several years, not always with admiration.

With the pseudoeloquence of big words he has mesmerized his followers and raised huge sums for his Operation PUSH — which means People United to Save Humanity. But he has not been above using implied threats which some employers construed as extortion. Jackson marched for black voter registration in the South and fostered black businesses in the North.

Recently, he opened offices in Washington, D.C., and the capital scribes and pharisees are meeting a different Jesse Jackson from the one we knew in Chicago. He says he is shifting his emphasis to meet the changing needs of his people. If his new mission is as genuine as it sounds, this former lieutenant of Martin Luther King will eclipse his mentor's stature. For Jesse Jackson is talking to black men and women as only one of their own can.

He says: "The civil rights movement has achieved most of its economic goals; now blacks are suffering from a 'spiritual crisis.'"

He says they must learn self-control, discipline, morality. He says the doors of opportunity have been smashed open but — many young men are too drunk to stagger through. Many young girls are too soon pregnant.

"Now," Jackson says, "the problem is moral decay and spiritual wickedness and nobody is going to save us from us but us." I told you he was eloquent, a spellbinder whose charisma and abilities might now be adapted to the most immense challenge facing Americans black and white.

Jackson says black businesses can't flourish where the crime rate suffocates them, freedom is an empty victory where our women cannot walk the streets safely, when our homes with barred windows become prisons.

He says what good are better schools if they become marketplaces for dope, if the movies our young people feed on glorify hustling and nonwork? He says the politics of confrontation of the 1960s accomplished its purposes. "Now we must solidify our gains with a spiritual regeneration."

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

It's almost beyond belief the lengths to which our political leaders will go in their efforts to balance the budget. Starting right at the top, the President has ordered all Federal agencies to cut their paper work by at least 10 per cent.

From here on out, instead of making reports in quadruplicate, there will be only 3.6 copies of each report to complete and file. The savings in time, money and effort should easily cover the cost of our foreign aid loan to Lower Slobovia. — And here in California, economy minded government leaders plan to save $84,000 each and every year from here on out by printing state checks on cheaper, thinner paper.

But economy at the state level doesn't end there. Having become convinced that you can't teach old dogs new tricks, some of our state officials are now proposing a cutback in state funding for adult education.

— However, of all the budget balancing plans being proposed during this election year, the one that could come closest to doing the job is one congressman's suggestion that for one year we all quit driving automobiles and just start walking. That way, he points out, we could save over $30 billion, which is what the economic loss caused by automobile accidents adds up to every 12 months.

Nixon victim is restored

By EARL G. WATERS

In a twist of fate, the man who aided Richard Nixon in launching his public career, has reemerged in public life himself.

That is Jerry Voorhis of Claremont who has been appointed by Gov. Jerry Brown to the Commission on Aging. The position itself is not considered an important one as state jobs go, at least from the standpoint of pay. The commission does have a worthwhile purpose in assisting the elderly in finding useful pursuits.

But the story is not so much what Voorhis was appointed to but rather the fact that, after many years of suffering an inferential disgrace, he has been restored to honor in a public position.

Voorhis' "disgrace" came at the hands of Nixon way back in 1946. A congressman from the 12th district in Los Angeles, Voorhis was serving his fifth term.

Many have since blamed Voorhis for permitting Nixon to thus gain his start in political life. They said Voorhis should have taken the campaign more seriously and worked harder for reelection. As it was he was soundly defeated by a vote of 65,000 to 50,000 in what had been considered a "safe" seat.

Voorhis, who had been described by his colleagues as the "hardest working member of the House" and had been named by the Capitol Correspondents as the "best Congressman west of the Mississippi", was obviously feeling secure.

He can hardly be faulted for that for most of the Republicans also thought him unbeatable. No Republican aspirant wanted to challenge him. In desperation they ran a want ad for a candidate. Nixon, then a struggling young Whittier lawyer who had just returned from wartime service in the Navy, leaped at the opportunity.

Had he run his campaign in the conventional manner of the day there is small doubt he would have lost. But Nixon resorted to the tactics which were to mark his conduct throughout his career and ultimately to be labeled "dirty tricks."

Indulging in a smear campaign of the worst sort, a campaign which is said to have been one of the bitterest in the state's history, he attacked Voorhis unmercifully, accusing him of being pro Communist, of voting the "Moscow line" and of being "a lip service American."

The unfairness of the attack was lost in the growing fears of Communism which led to the rise of Wisconsin's Senator Joseph McCarthy a few years later. The closest Voorhis had ever come to any philosophies embraced by Communism was back in his student days when, as a member of the executive committee of the Socialist Party, he campaigned for Upton Sinclair and his EPIC plan. The Socialist Party was reasonably respectable in those days. It had even elected a party member mayor of Berkeley which, at that time, was composed of conservative voters. The publisher of its hometown paper, Friend W. Richardson, had served as governor from 1923 to 1927.

Nixon's success in using the Communist ploy encouraged him to continue attacking political opponents with trumped up charges. It brought him fame in Congress and led to his challenge of Helen Gahagan Douglas for the office of United States Senator in 1950, again using the same smear tactics, tagging Mrs. Douglas as the "Pink Lady."

Years later Nixon was to be apologetic about his conduct in those campaigns, stating he was sorry about the episodes and excusing himself by explaining it happened when he was a very young man.

How sincere his sorrow was can be judged by his conduct when, as President, he compiled an "enemy list" and sought to use the power of his office to purge his opponents. Voorhis may take some comfort in the knowledge that the man who destroyed his political career lived to destroy himself.

Bad breath a mental problem?

Dear Ann Landers: Your answer to people with all sorts of problems is usually, "Don't give up. Keep working toward a solution." Well, I am about to give up. You are my last resort.

Do you know of any cure for persistent unpleasant breath besides the usual advice, "Brush your teeth, gargle, bland diet, etc."?

I've had numerous tests, Xrays, sinus examinations, and thorough work-ups by dentists. Everyone I've gone to says, "Learn to live with it."

I chew gum, use mouth sprays and suck on mints constantly. Nothing helps. The odor is even present when I breathe through my nose. Can you suggest something, Ann? I'd be forever grateful. — Desperate And Depressed.

Dear D.: Has anyone ever mentioned this problem to you? I'm not convinced it's real — or that it is so offensive that you have cause to be "Desperate and Depressed."

Since you've been checked out by so many doctors, I'd like to suggest one more. Try a counselor or a therapist. If he (or she) tells you your anxieties are rooted in fact and not fantasy then you'd better stick to the sprays and mints and learn to live with it. My hunch is that the problem is largely in your head.

Dear Ann Landers: I am sick to death reading letters from women who are desperate to increase their bustline, asking about creams and gadgets. (One idiot who sent $5 received a picture of a man's hand.)

And then there are women who complain because they are "top heavy." It seems nobody is satisfied with what God gave 'em.

How ironic when thousands of us have had mastectomies and are making the best of one breast and are thankful just to be alive. Call me — Eleanor

Dear Eleanor: A letter like yours is a sober reminder that too often we take ordinary good health for granted. Thank you for shaking us all up.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm faking the names (to protect the guilty) but I hope you will print this letter and answer my question.

Recently I was introduced to a mother of a maiden lady I have worked with for several years. My friend's name is Carmelita Garlinette. When she said, "I'd like you to meet my mother, Bessie Goldberg," I nearly went into shock. In fact, I was so dumbfounded I couldn't speak, so I just extended my hand. What should I have said? — Unprepared

Dear Unprepared: You should have said, "How do you do, Mrs. Goldberg."

Dear Ann: Please forgive me for my poor English, but I haven't been in your wonderful country for very many years.

Here is a problem from both me and my wife. How can we open up a conversation with new friends? We are not very good talkers but we love people and are interested in listening and learning. If you could suggest some books to help us we would be very appreciative. Thank you. — N.G. In New York City

Dear Friend: Several years ago, Barbara Walters wrote an excellent book called, "How To Talk To Practically Anybody About Practically Anything" (publisher, Doubleday). It's the best book I know of on the subject. Call your bookstore and get a copy.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Marmaduke

"Remember the contact shelf paper you bought? Well, Marmaduke found it."

L.M. Boyd

Kissing wife lewd behavior

The historical record at hand lists him only as Captain Kemble of Boston. Upon his return from a three-year voyage at sea, he ran up the front porch steps, threw his arms around his wife, and kissed her. In 1656, that was. The court of the day thereabouts called it "lewd and unseemly behavior." And the old boy was locked up in the public stocks for a couple of hours where it can be assumed he gave it some thought as no doubt did the onlookers.

A baby porcupine only hangs around its mother for about a week before it goes off on its own. But that's nothing, a baby alligator doesn't hang around its mother at all. The minute it's hatched, it's ready for whatever.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS

Q. "Do you recall that World War II German aircraft known as the Messerschmitt 109? How many were there? Are any still around?"

A. Of the original 42,000 planes, none survives, so far as I've been able to find out. Now do you remember the American fighter called the P-38? There were 16,000 of those. And at last report, only eight were still able to take to the air. Vintage war planes just don't make it, evidently.

Q. "The comedian W.C. Fields said he wanted his epitaph to read: 'I'd rather be living in Philadelphia.' What's actually on his tombstone?"

A. There's no tombstone. His cremated remains are in a crypt at Forest Lawn. Engraved on a little plaque is "W.C. Fields, 1880-1946," that's all.

Q. "How many possible poker hands in a 52-card deck?"
A. At least 2½ million.

EDITING

Four newspaper copy editors at a seminar in a coastal city toured a waterfront market which displayed this sign: "Fresh fish sold here." The first expert said eliminate "here" as superfluous. Where else would the fish be if not "here"? The second said take out "sold," too. It's not free, obviously. The third felt "fresh" likewise ought to go inasmuch as any other sort wouldn't be advertised. And the fourth, sniffing with some repugnance, said strike out "fish." It's unnecessary.

Those lawmen who raided a rural dogfight getogether up in Oregon certainly pulled a beaut. If you've ever seen a fierce dog trained for a pit, you'll get the picture. The green officers threw eight of those dogs into the back of an unpartitioned paddy wagon to haul them off to town, and the eventual word was it turned into the dogfight of the century.

Pet rocks not wanted now

The number of pet rocks sold over the counter last Christmas was no less than phenomenal.

We received two. A male and a female.

Now, I'm not the greatest rock lover in the world. Oh sure, they're sorta cute if they sparkle and are mounted on your ring finger. And I get a good feeling knowing my insurance company is built on one, but I don't get too choked up about having them all over the house.

The pet rock number was just as I knew it would be.

At Christmas, the kids couldn't put them down. They fondled them, took them for walks, taught them tricks and every time we had company, they'd trot out the rock in the box.

Then I didn't see them for awhile until one morning at breakfast, I said to my son, "Hey, I bumped into your pet rock last night on the way back from a drink of water."

"Where?"

"With my foot."

"What foot?"

"The one with the cast on it. They're your rocks and you have to take care of them, do you hear?"

Within two months, the rocks began to appear everywhere. Under beds, behind doors, in the clothes hamper, in pockets, in the car, and we even found one grinding away in the disposal.

"Look," I admonished, "I don't have time to fiddle with your pets. Why don't you find them a good home? After all, you never play with them anymore."

"What's to play with?" he grumbled. "All they do is sleep."

"No," I said shaking my head, "that's not ALL they do. They're multiplying faster than the King Family. Start looking for homes for them."

We put a sign out in front, Pet Rocks — 1 cent each. It was like trying to unload pregnant kittens. No one, but no one wants a pet rock anymore.

I tried calling my friends and got answers like, "I'm sorry, but we live in an apartment," or "If I weren't expecting the baby in three months, I'd take one off your hands."

"Maybe we could take them out to a river and leave them."

"Abandon a pet rock?" I said. "What kind of an animal are you? Who would take care of them? They couldn't survive in the wilds."

To make matters worse, our other son brought in two stray rocks the other night and put them by the sink. This morning, I went to move them and under one was a pile of gravel. Here we go again.

Dr. Miller

Adult parakeet difficult to train

DEAR DR. MILLER: I've heard it's impossible to train an adult parakeet? — O.C.

DEAR O.D.: Not impossible, really, but infinitely more difficult. Those who "have a way with birds" can train a bird of practically any age, at least to some degree. For those lacking this expertise or the patience to acquire it, practically speaking, only a young parakeet may prove trainable.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Garibaldi, my cat, waits impatiently for the mailman. Knows when he's coming, too. Does he get mail of his own? No. Does he snoop into my mail? No. Why does he wait for the mail? You'd never guess. He's a glue junkie. He can't wait to get to those envelopes and start slurping up the glue. What am I to do? Anything? Will the glue hurt him? It hasn't yet that I can tell. He has cut his tongue a couple of times on the paper, though. — V. W.

DEAR V. W.: Garibaldi's glue gamtit poses a stickly question. As far as the glue itself is concerned, the amount your cat consumes, if he sticks to your personal mail, shouldn't be enough to upset him except possibly at Christmas card time. But paper is a potential hazard, of course. It can cut, as you noted, or if he consumes it in a frantic effort to get all the glue, he certainly could gum up stomach or intestine in the process.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Sport's just had his third nosebleed in the last three weeks. He's active, runs loose, and has a great time. But it looks a bit scary when that nose is bleeding and he's snorting blood all over the place. It's since stopped and he looks fine again, or I would have had him checked up. What usually causes nosebleeds in a dog? — J. J.

DEAR J. J.: Sport's sanguinary snoot episodes are most likely caused by a blow on the nose or a foreign body in it. Less frequent causes can range from parasites to tumors. Even though Sport seems fine in between, a checkup is still indicated. So is keeping him confined, since this could prevent further injury should that be a cause. Also, keeping him confined means that you will have him on hand to get him in for help should serious hemorrhage occur. (An epistaxis — nosebleed — can indeed be serious).

Dr. Lamb

False alarm syphilis test

Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband has always been a blood donor but he can no longer give blood. When he went to give blood for a man who needed it the test showed syphilis.

Needless to say this caused a problem with us and I was in shock because I have always trusted my husband. The doctor had me come in and they tested me and I had a negative result. They tested my husband some more and said it was a high protein count which gave the same results.

He will never be able to give blood again. This has caused some questions in my mind. Why is this so? The doctor would give me no answer on this. All he said was it happens sometimes and he has seen couples who couldn't cope with it and were divorced. Would you please explain if it is possible and give more details about it.

I do love my husband but it has caused me to doubt him and not have the complete trust that I did have in our marriage.

DEAR READER — The standard blood test for syphilis is merely a chemical reaction. When a person has had syphilis he may (but does not always have) a chemical in the blood that produces a specific reaction and results in a positive test. That's why the test is useful in detecting someone who has had syphilis.

Things don't stop there. The body is also able to produce a similar or like chemical in certain other conditions which are not associated with syphilis at all. Then when the same test is done this chemical will cause a positive test. We call these false positives. The value of a laboratory test is dependent upon its ability to detect a disease without giving false positive reactions in people who do not have it.

The standard syphilis blood test is pretty good but not perfect. There are individuals who have false positive tests. Additional tests can also be run to narrow this problem down for the individual. I presume from your remarks that your doctor is quite confident that your husband did not have syphilis and that his test reaction is caused by one of these flukes in chemical reactions. I fail to see how you can blame your husband for having a chemical reaction in his blood stream over which he had no control at all.

Your doctor has told you he doesn't have syphilis. He has also tested you as part of the total examination and determined that you don't have syphilis despite having lived in marriage with your husband for years. What else do you need? While I can't vouch for your husband's behavior, your statements lead me to believe that he has a clean bill of health as far as any evidence of venereal disease. you're reacting to something that is not too different than if he showed up with mild jaundice because he had a chemical reaction in the blood.

You should be happy that the medical tests showed that your husband did not have venereal disease. Your concern really should be directed toward hoping that the unique chemical reaction that he had does not indicate that he has any important medical problems that will affect his health in the future.

Opening lead — Q ♥

South looked over dummy and didn't like what he saw. Not that his partner had done anything wrong, but rather that there were nine sure tricks available at notrump and no apparent 10th visible at the four-spade contract.

Then South saw a ray of hope — in fact a couple of rays. The first one was that maybe the queen of clubs would drop doubleton. The second one was a far more complicated ray, but it might well be available if that queen didn't drop.

South won the first heart with his king, cashed dummy's ace and king of trumps and ace of hearts and ruffed a heart. This left one trump outstanding, but South couldn't help that. He needed to keep a trump in dummy. Then South cashed the ace and king of clubs and led a third club.

West was on lead and could do nothing to keep South from scoring his 10th trick.

Ask the Jacobys

A Wisconsin reader wants to know what we bid with:
♠ A K ♥ Q x x ♦ A K x x x ♣ 10 x x.

The game is match-point duplicate. You are second hand and vulnerable and dealer opens three hearts.

This is a tough one indeed, but we would bid three notrump. The hand is unsatisfactory for a takeout double and too big to pass.

New life for U.S. railway towns on the way

ELKO, Nev. (AP) — More than 40 times a day, this northeastern Nevada town of 9,500 is split in two.

Lying on two main east-west railroad lines, the city's central district is riddled with rail. There are 17 track crossings in an eight block area alone.

Lengthy transcontinental freight trains lumber through Elko about twice an hour. Traffic is hopelessly snarled and entire neighborhoods are completely isolated. Local authorities say a couple of lives are lost each year at the crossings, including motorists who make a last minute dash across the tracks to avoid the wait — and don't make it.

Occasionally the right combination of railroad traffic makes it impossible for cars or pedestrians to cross anywhere in the town for periods up to three hours.

But Elko's railroad woes may be easing with the implimentation of an experimental federally-funded bypass program that eventually may be used to solve the track problems of hundreds of American cities that grew up along rail lines.

Under a pending federal demonstration project, a 5.6-mile consolidated track corridor will be laid through downtown Elko to solve the traffic problems and provide more efficient rail service.

The Federal Highway Administration has approved a new alternate route for the corridor, which will replace the central city sections of both the three-track Western Pacific line and the twin-track Southern Pacific line. The five tracks will become two along the new consolidated stretch.

Senate and House versions of the Federal Highway Act of 1975, currently under joint conference consideration, both include $16 million for Elko's Project Lifesaver. The federal government will share 95 per cent of the cost, with the city, state and railroads sharing the rest.

Ira Rackley, a consulting engineer working on the project, says construction may start within a year, with all phases of construction to be completed in about five years.

After almost two years of city-financed planning work, Elko is the first of four demonstration sites in the country to have a final environmental impact statement and route approved, Rackley said.

And some 185 U.S. cities have formally notified the federal government that they are interested in similar railroad bypass projects in their downtown sections.

Denver gold may go to Fort Knox

DENVER (AP) — Officials of the U.S. Mint say gold stored here amounts to 40,254,844 troy ounces with a value of $5.38 billion on the world market.

If the mint is moved to a new location or a new mint built as is now being planned, the gold would be moved permanently to Ft. Knox, Ky., or some other storage area, officials say.

The U.S. Treasury Department says 147 million troy ounces of government-owned gold is stored at Ft. Knox, 74.9 million ounces in the assay office in New York, 3.3 million ounces at the assay office in San Francisco and 849 ounces at the Philadelphia Mint.

The gold would be moved from here permanently because it is no longer used in the mint operation, a spokesman said.

The Treasury Department values U.S. gold at $44.2 per ounce, making the supply here worth $1.71 billion. But the world gold market is currently at $133 an ounce, pushing the value to $5.38 billion.

The gold stored here is mostly gold coins which citizens were required to turn in when gold was no longer used as currency.

Soviet trade center planned

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Occidental Petroleum Corp. says that up to $50 million worth of U.S. materials and equipment will be bought by the Soviet Union in conjunction with a contract between Occidental and a Soviet firm to build an international trade center in Moscow.

Occidental's board chairman, Dr. Armand Hammer, originated the concept of the center to boost Soviet trade with the West.

Welton Becket Associates are to be the architects for the center, the spokesman said.

Giant chessmen on move

An unidentified player picks up a three-foot high chessman as he plays on an outdoor chess board in the coastal community of Morro Bay.

It's like an Alice in Wonderland fantasy

MORRO BAY (AP) — Like a surrealistic fantasy out of Alice's Adventures in Wonderland, the chess player walked across the huge cement board and methodically moved a giant hand-carved chessman.

While members of Morro Bay's chess club played, tourists wandering by the giant board stopped and watched silently. Occasionally, a small, white dog scampered across the board—darting between the tall pieces.

The 30-foot-square chessboard and its three-foot-high chessmen comprise a unique recreational facility along the waterfront of this small Pacific Coast resort town.

Morro Bay's recreation director claims the board and the chest-high pieces are the largest in the United States. Chess federation officials report an oversize chess board is located in New York City, but it's smaller than the one here, says David Draga.

"The board's large enough we can use human beings as chess pieces," adds Draga, noting he may do just that as part of a summer children's program.

Credit for the project belongs to a citizens' committee and the enthusiasm of two avid chess players in this Central California community, Draga said.

A summer trip to Germany by Wachtang Korishelli, a high school music teacher, sparked the novel creation. He played on a similar board with plastic chessmen during his trip.

The citizens' committee secured some redwood from two 35-year-old water towers torn down by the city.

Korishelli and Wayne Bickford laminated the redwood into blocks and carved the chessmen with a lathe they built from old auto parts. Bickford is a cement contractor, an asset in making the board.

The cost—including a new stairway constructed nearby— was set at $45,000 including about $15,000 in donated material and time, Braga said.

Communist message gets louder in Mexico slums

MEXICO CITY, Mexico (AP) — In front of the cardboard and scrap wood shack, three men strummed guitars and sang the words of a song that has become popular in Mexico City's numerous squattertowns.

"How sad my people are, living in houses of cardboard ... how happy live the dogs in the house of the exploiter," go the words. No one knows who wrote the song but many are singing it in the shantytowns that have sprung up on privately owned or government land.

"They're fighting," said Francisco de la Cruz, a self-professed Marxist who is the leader of an organization he says is active in most of the 585 shantytowns or "lost cities" ringing the capitol, as they do in many Latin American cities.

"The insurrection of the poor people is knocking at the door," he said. "We can't wait for a government that serves capitalism to help us."

De la Cruz and some of his aides made it clear that they think communism is the only way Mexico's slum problem will be solved.

De la Cruz's organization, set up in brigades, has established learning centers for slum children who do not attend public schools. The children get heavy doses of Marxist doctrine. Tots there shoot clenched fists into the air and chant leftist slogans in unison.

Names of slum streets, which look more like narrow dirt alleyways, sometimes bear the names of prominent Communist leaders — Che Guevara, Ho Chi Minh, Fidel Castro and others.

Brigades of de la Cruz's leftists can always be found working in the slums. Some brigades teach, some run health clinics, some organize cleanup campaigns and others collect money for "the cause."

A de la Cruz assistant said the organization has steady contact with Chilean refugees living in Mexico. The refugees fled Chile in 1973 after a military coup toppled the regime of the late Marxist President Salvadore Allende.

The de la Cruz operation also has contact with underground leftist leaders in Santiago, Chile, and in Guatemala, the assistant said.

Mexico has enjoyed a half century of political stability and the chance of anyone organizing a successive revolution in the near future is remote.

The government continues to try to cope with the problem of housing. But it can't keep up with the 3.7 per cent annual growth rate of the population, one of the highest in the world. The U.S. population growth rate has reached a virtual zero point.

The government says that in the last five years it has replaced 157 lost cities, where 10,000 persons lived, with government subsidized housing. In the 1960s a giant housing project in the capital provided homes for 100,000 families.

Despite this, the slums keep multiplying.

The shortage of housing was 4 million units, according to the 1970 census. A recent study indicated the shortage will rise to almost 9 million houses by 1980, more houses than Mexico presently has.

"We are many and we will be many more," de la Cruz said. "and the majority is going to solve this problem."

"The battle," as de la Cruz calls it, is not always fought with just words.

In the first two months of this year, seven men and three children in the northern industrial city of Monterrey were killed in confrontations between the police and squatters.

The police said they were attacked by the squatters. The squatters said the police had been harassing them and then started shooting without cause.

It is not unusual to see the Mexico City slums surrounded by riot policemen. The police say they are there to prevent violence. The slum leaders say the police presence is harassment that leads to confrontation.

Policemen sometimes tear down the squatters' shacks during the night and then stand guard to prevent the families from carrying away the materials to build elsewhere.

"Almost all of those who live here came to the capital because they were desperate, unable to get a piece of land in the countryside," de la Cruz claimed.

Peasant demands for land are bringing violence to the countryside, too.

Ebell Club sets Friday benefit

Final decorations are being placed for the Pomona Ebell annual philanthropy party Friday noon.

"The Spirit of '76" spring luncheon and fashion show will support the club's activities and community projects, according to the general chairman, Mrs. John W. Hawks.

Oldtime gowns from the collection of Mrs. Myron F. Powell, a member, will be modeled by other members.

The setting for the party is the stately Ebell Clubhouse which was moved to its present location in 1922, some 20 years after the club was founded in Pomona.

Oil and water color painting by Ebell members will be displayed in the dining room and parlors.

In keeping with the Bicentennial theme, the patriotic setting will enhance the past history of the club and the country while still stressing the awareness of spring and the future.

Diamond Bar Club helps community

Through the efforts of the Diamond Bar Woman's Club, 1,500 feet of reinforced chain link fencing will be installed at the Diamond Bar Little League field separating the field from the Union Pacific Railroad tracks.

With the assistance of Edmund Zielomski, the poles have been donated and the Jordan Construction Co. has donated the cement.

The Little League fathers will furnish the manpower. For the Diamond Bar Woman's Club donation and efforts a Little League team will be designated as the Diamond Bar Woman's Club team.

A book has been donated by the Diamond Bar Woman's Club to the library of Castle Rock School in honor of the following past presidents: Mrs. Jack Tillery, Mrs. Carmel Shaw, Mrs. John Moore, Mrs. Grandin Hammell, Mrs. Harold Anderson and Mrs. Marvin Studts.

R.J. Shackletts feted at party

A surprise party at Orlando's restaurant in Pomona honored Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Shacklett of Claremont on their silver wedding anniversary.

Hosting the buffet reception were children of the couple. Mr. and Mrs. William Shacklett, Robert, David and Kathleen Shacklett.

Among the 100 guests was the couple's best man at their wedding, Stanley W. Shacklett.

As an additional surprise, son Robert was flown to the party from the University of Montana in Missoula, Mont., where he is a student.

Mr. and Mrs. Shacklett were married on Feb. 25, 1951, in Las Vegas, Nev., and have resided in the valley 24 years. They previously resided in Los Angeles.

Mr. Shacklett is owner of R.J. and S.W. Shacklett Construction Co. Mrs. Shacklett is a member of the Claremont Board of Education.

Lou Dokken's orchestra played at the reception.

Life as dispatcher keeps her at home

LEDYARD, Conn. (AP) — Mrs. Adelaide Merchant doesn't go out very much. But she says she likes it that way because her job as an emergency services dispatcher is fulfilling.

Mrs. Merchant, known as "Mrs. Addie" and "Mother Hen" to neighbors and firemen in this northeastern Connecticut community, is on call 24 hours a day serving from her home on Allyn Road as ambulance and fire dispatcher. She says she believes herself to be the only dispatcher in the area who works alone.

"People are important to me. I have a role in life that is important," she says, noting she couldn't keep the job if it weren't for her cooperative husband, Daniel, who does the shopping.

"I'm fulfilling a need in myself and he knows that. He knows I have to do it."

When the phone rings, "the adrenalin starts going," says Mrs. Merchant, a warm and lively woman who does most of her socializing when friends come to visit her.

After notifying the necessary emergency service, she monitors and tracks the case until its conclusion and keeps a public log of all calls.

Her "day," which can run from 18 to 48 hours straight, also includes calls on the lighter side: "calls about where to sign up for the Little League, who won the election. I even got a call for the correct time in the middle of the night."

Mrs. Merchant, at her job for eight years, says she has never thought seriously of giving it up despite the social events, school functions and other activities she has missed.

Irish myths?

Legend credits St. Patrick with a variety of accomplishments. Stories passed down through the years tell us that St. Patrick drove the snakes from Ireland, founded 300 churches, baptized 120,000 people, planted the first shamrocks in Ireland, introduced the Roman alphabet, taught the populace to sing and chant, wrote the first code of Irish laws and invented Irish whiskey.

Bath will relieve tension

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

To curb inner tensions, try the daily bath instead of pills.

That suggestion comes from lovely Hisako "Chako" Nagashima of Tokyo, who was explaining some of the factors that may contribute to the Japanese woman's look of serenity.

In fact, Chako carries her own washcloth — a long narrow strip of toweling — about the world as she travels in her job. She will not even stay in a hotel that doesn't have bathtubs.

"I can't really understand why 90 per cent of my busy American friends prefer quick showers when the bath could help them relax," she says. "It should not be a hurry-up thing, though, like the shower. It should be a ritual of relaxation.

"In Japan many people take community baths," she explained. "The soaping is done first and removed before we get into the bath. The bath itself lasts for about 30 minutes. Old and middle-age women or young girls — we become friends. As soon as I get back home they will ask me whether I will be taking a bath."

Chako uses her washcloth for a stimulating massage. She holds it behind her neck, pulling it across her shoulders and then massaging her body all the way. She can't understand why Americans use such tiny washcloths.

"And our baths are always fragrant. We may get thirsty in the bath and we will peel an orange and discard the peel in the tub for a delicious scent as we eat the orange for refreshment."

A thoroughly modern Japanese woman — she wears her kimono on special occasions but likes to wear turtleneck sweaters and skirts — she looks far younger than her 38 years. She had simply refused to marry at 20, when her parents decided to make the decision for her. She was attending a finishing school and learning the fine arts of the tea ceremony, flower arranging. Japanese cooking and good manners.

Her parents did not want her to work, "but I was a little sneaky about it," she confesses, and after getting a job, told them. She is now Director of Training with Shiseido, the cosmetics company that hired her 17 years ago.

"My education was designed to make me a good wife, but I can now apply it to my job. I have trained the company's 10,000 beauty artists — 21 are in the United States — in the fine art of the tea ceremony, proper makeup, ladylike refinement. It is all useful when the girls conduct ceremonies at stores that are introducing the makeup." The message is that beauty is more than skin deep, she insists.

"We try to teach customers the art of gentle massage of the face by showing how to rotate several fingers over the skin in the Japanese manner. Gentle massage can help relax skin that is beginning to show fine lines."

Self approval is a great asset in the beauty scheme, she points out, and their beauty thrust is aimed toward touting the air of serenity that results from relaxing therapy such as the bath, massage, "delicate actions" and proper makeup.

Japanese girls are trained early in the art of beauty, she contends, and the beauty artists visit high school students in Japan before they graduate.

"We tell them that even if a woman has no education, she can look high class if she knows how to make up, but if she is educated and does not know how to use makeup, she can look cheap. We don't advise makeup for teen-agers. In the United States they start too soon. At 13 some are using heavy foundation, which encourages acne and pimples. At 18 a girl can begin to use soft makeup if she knows how."

Bathing is a great tonic for young girls, she advises. It can help freshen their complexions as the bath brings moisture to their skins. In Japan many home baths are still taken in the old wood tubs that are heated by charcoal and these are likely to give off a lot of steam that can be good for the skin.

Chako uses a face mask every week and does a facial massage with cream every night, she said, in explaining her own flawless complexion. At the moment she is in New York where she is often asked how Japanese women manage to keep so young looking. She thinks their poise and youthful appearance may be attributed "to the time they take to enjoy being women." All their ceremonies, bath to tea, are designed for relaxation.

Joyce Brothers

Blushes if nervous

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I think people don't like me and I keep trying to find new ways to make myself more attractive to others. I realize that I'm naturally quite introverted and so I'm trying to be more extroverted. The only problem is that when I force myself to be outgoing, I become unhappy and anxious. When I'm nervous, I blush and this just calls everyone's attention to my problem. Have you any suggestions that would improve my social life and make me happier with myself. — J. V.

Dear J.V.: One of the first and most important things to realize is that you don't have to be liked by everyone. If you can learn to love and accept yourself, I'm sure you will be happier, more relaxed, and more able to give to others without any great effort or design.

Even if you could change from introvert to extrovert, this isn't the answer. The difference between introverts and extroverts are such that no amount of effort on your part will change your basic personality type.

Because there are many more extroverts than introverts in our society, and because we tend to value and prize the qualities of extroverts, the introverted person often fails to fully appreciate himself.

As far as personality types go, opposites tend to attract. Instead of trying to be more extroverted, settle for being yourself and allow extroverts to be attracted to you. If you develop yourself and expand your own interests, this will happen. Concentrate on being sincere, warm, optimistic and confident and people will think of you in these terms.

Don't be afraid of being independent and holding to your own views even when they happen to be quite different from those of a friend.

Once you learn to accept yourself, you'll find that you're much less nervous with others and you'll blush less. People blush when they feel insecure and guilty about not being what they admire or wish to be. The blusher is communicating something and that's why blushing occurs only in the face where it can be seen. The person who blushes wants to tell others that what they may be thinking about him isn't true.

Sometimes it's wise to prepare yourself before going to a party. Take time to do some reading or exploration of a subject that interests you and will interest others. Focus on the subject, rather than on the people and they will probably be drawn in and carried along by your excitement and enthusiasm.

Who heads household?

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — There's one thing about Louisiana that fires the eye of the mildest of women and sends feminists clawing straight up the wall.

It is the law making it mandatory that a woman's husband, no matter how big a dolt he may be, is "head and master" of the family.

No other state has a law quite like that. Whether this one should be changed is under study and the issue may be put to the legislature when it meets in May.

Male supremacy, often referred to by the Spanish term "machismo," was embedded in the state's legal code back in the late 1700s when Spain held Louisiana.

Actually, other than a limiting "Southern belle" image, women never seemed particularly downtrodden in Louisiana — but in financial matters the state's law does have some unique quirks.

One is that a working wife finds her income under the legal control of her husband. Her money is thus subject to seizure to cover his debts, including those made before they married.

Barbara Bullock of New Orleans, as a new bride, awoke to find a slice of her bank account gone with the Internal Revenue Service to cover her new lord and master's old tax debt.

But the law does not cut both ways. Had the bride owed the debt, the IRS would have been out of luck; it couldn't have gotten into the new husband's assets.

Before a recent change in state law, a woman's creditor could not attach her wages if she married because her income then came under her husband's control. Now that can be done — but the husband's money can't be touched.

Presumably, the over-all picture was changed in Louisiana when the federal Equal Credit Opportunity Act took effect last October. The problem is, how? No one seems exactly sure what the situation is now because the act specifies it does not supersede state laws.

The act was passed to help women by forbidding discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status.

Insofar as the act's full impact on Louisiana is concerned, lawyers expect it will take a series of court tests, fixing legal precedent, before all comes clear.

For instance, the federal act specifically backed off from conflict with Louisiana law regarding a husband's control of his wife's income — and the complications that poses for those she may approach for a loan or to establish credit.

The act disclaimed any intention of requiring "any creditor or card issuer to extend credit to any person when such person is not deemed creditworthy."

Defenders of "machismo" law argue that, basically, many of the statutes protect women.

"We have provided a way that the woman would have the opportunity to share in her husband's good fortune if she let him manage, but didn't have a share in his misfortune," said Robert A. Pascal, a law professor at Louisiana State University.

Pascal is a member of a Louisiana Law Institute committee which is trying to shape up a proposed revision of state community property law to present to the legislature.

But he would make minor revisions to give the wife more control over her own income or property, leaving the man the head and master.

Others on the committee want to scrap the head and master concept and replace it with a partnership arrangement.

A cheapskate

Was free-spending Aristotle Onassis a cheapskate at heart? Yes, according to novelist Stephen Birmingham writing in Family Circle's special March "Great Living On A Shoestring" issue. Revealing the inside gossip on "what cheapskates the rich are," Birmingham tells of Onassis's periodic forays into the galley of his yacht, the Christina. Here he poked through the garbage cans, suspicious that his chef was being extravagant or wasteful' 'Once," Birmingham writes, "Onassis flew into a rage when he came upon a large wad of spaghetti that had been thrown out. 'Perfectly good spaghetti!' he fumed, brandishing the lovely substance in both hands. 'Perfectly good spaghetti!'"

MAKEUP MAGIC — Tony Award-winning actor Hal Holbrook will turn himself into Mark Twain for five performances of his one-man show, "Mark Twain Tonight!" at the Ahmanson Theater of the Los Angeles Music Center March 30 and 31 and April 1, 2 and 3. Curtain is at 8:30 p.m.

STC to do Kopit drama

The Arts Council Drama Group of the School of Theology at Claremont will present Arthur Kopit's "Indians" in Mudd Auditorium at 8 p.m. April 2, 3, 8, 9 and 10 and at 2 p.m. April 10.

On one level "Indians" deals with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, with both a humorous and scathing look at his life and times. At a deeper level, however, the play probes the relationship between two cultures, the white and the Indian, who both attempt to honor their respective myths and rhythms.

The play also speaks on contemporary problems of inter-cultural communication. This multi-level interaction is encased in a raucous, confusing and enveloping Western panorama.

Admission is $2 general, $1 for students, and $1 each for groups of 20 or more. Reservations may be made in advance with Laurie Goman, 626-3521, Ext. 272, between 10 a.m. and noon daily.

EDO DE WAART, 34-year-old Dutch conductor, has been named conductor of the San Francisco Symphony. He replaces Japanese-born Seiji Ozawa, who has been conductor of both the San Francisco orchestra and the Boston Symphony. Ozawa will now devote full time to the Boston orchestra.

Opera group to hold dinner

The West End Opera Association and opera chorus will hold their annual dinner dance at Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church, Montclair, Saturday, with social hour starting at 6:30 p.m.

The theme is "The Way It Was." Proceeds will help support the opera company which will stage "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "I Pagliacci" in Spring Auditorium, Ontario, April 24.

Music for dancing will be provided by The Continentals, a five-member band organized 30 years ago in Beaver Valley, Pa., home of Henry Mancini. After an early association with Mancini, the group continued professionally throughout the United States.

Ticket information can be obtained from Filomena Capparelli, 982-2498, or Mrs. Edward Hamilton Jr., 987-1485.

Indiana passed a right-to-work law in 1957.

PIANO DUO — Marjorie and Wendell Nelson will present a duo-piano recital in Bridges Hall, Pomona College, at 3 p.m. March 28. Admission is free. The program will include music by Vivaldi, Brahms, Mozart, Ravel and others.

Piano recital planned

Duo-pianists Marjorie and Wendell Nelson, Pomona College graduates, will present a recital in Bridges Hall, Pomona College, at 3 p.m. March 28. Admission is free.

The Nelsons are rapidly gaining recognition in duo recitals, orchestra performances and master classes in the United States and abroad. They studied at Pomona with Daryl Dayton and are now students of Lillian Steuber at USC.

The program will include Vivaldi's Concerto in A Minor, Rachmaninoff's "Floods of Spring," Ravel's "Sites Auriculaires", Sonata in F Minor by Brahms and selections by Fricker, Mozart and Debussy.

'Habe das'

A haberdasher is basically a dealer in accessories — shirts, ties, socks. Peddlers in Germany would cry their wares by calling "Habe das" — in English — "I have that." When the sellers settled in stores they kept their traveling name — haberdasher.

Reggae film set

"Harder They Come," a movie starring reggae artist Jimmy Cliff and company, will be showing Friday at Avery Auditorium on the Pitzer College campus. Show times will be 6 p.m. and 8:50 p.m. Admission is $1 donation plus a used book for the Pitzer library.

Based on the lyrics, "Harder they come, harder they fall, one and all" from a song by Cliff, the movie has been widely acclaimed on college campuses.

Some bats eat fruit, others live chiefly on insects. But vampire bats live on blood!

The common vampire bat is a small flying animal not much larger than a mouse. Vampire bats live in Central and South America, but are never found in the United States.

Despite its manner of eating and its repuration, the vampire bat does not sink its fangs into the throat of a sleeping person and suck out all the victim's life blood, as in myth.

In reality, vampire bats only rarely attack humans, but feed mainly on the blood of such animals as horses and cattle.

The vampire bat has razor-sharp teeth with which it nips the skin of a sleeping animal and then laps up the blood. A vampire bat drinks only about a tablespoonful of blood at a meal.

The victim doesn't even wake up, because the bite is painless. The bite is harmless and soon heals, but many such bats carry a disease that can be dangerous to the victim.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

How federal regulations affect our daily lives

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — At 7:45 a.m., Nancy Ruddell sits down for her first cup of morning coffee, adding an artificial sweetener containing saccharin.

"Contains no cyclamate" reads the little packet of Shop Rite Superior Quality Sweetener. Cyclamate lacks saccharin's bitter aftertaste, but it cannot be sold for human consumption because of a U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) ruling in 1969.

This day that started at 6:15 a.m. is a mostly unexceptional one for Tom and Nancy Ruddell. They take their two children to school; Tom goes to work at Pennsylvania Power and Light; Nancy makes two shopping trips; and they give a small party.

But throughout this day, and every other day, the Ruddells' lives — and those of every American — are shaped by federal regulations.

The effects of most regulations slip by unnoticed — like U.S. Department of Agriculture's fat content for the choice beef sold at the local supermarket.

Others are not so hidden — like the required seat belt ignition interlock on Nancy's red Volvo 165 station wagon which she calls "a constant pain in the neck."

The extent to which federal regulations touch the Ruddell family is not unusual. Every family in this town — where the Liberty Bell was hidden from British troops in 1777 in the Zion Reformed Church — and every family in this country is affected by the rules made in Washington, D.C.

For most Americans, the federal role in their personal lives is largely ignored.

This, then, is a look at the regulations in a day in the life of one American family in this city of 109,000 in the rolling hills of eastern Pennsylvania.

6:15 a.m. — A burst from the alarm clock rouses the family. The clock reads that particular time because Congress decreed Daylight Savings Time ended when October did.

6:25 a.m. — Geoffrey, age 5, slips out of his pajamas that are flame retardant because the Consumer Product Safety Commission requires sleepwear for children to be so treated.

6:50 a.m. — Three quarts of Abbotts homogenized milk deposited earlier in the morning outside the back door are brought in by Geoffrey. Nancy makes a mix of the milk and reconstituted Shop Rite Instant Non-Fat Dry Milk, cutting the drink's calories and cholesterol. But the resulting mixture is also cheaper than ordinary skim milk because the U.S. Department of Agriculture sets a higher support price for skim milk than whole milk.

7:37 a.m. — Jennifer, 10, and Geoffrey take the Hess's brand of Fruit Flavored Chewable Multiple Vitamins. A bit later, Tom and Nancy both take a multivitamin made by the Treasury Drug Co. for the J.C. Penny Co.

The manufacture and labeling of vitamins are now regulated by the Food and Drug Administration, but Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., is sponsoring a bill to prohibit the FDA fromregulating the potency of such diet supplements. This would mean consumers would be able to buy massive does of various vitamins, whether or not the FDA concludes such doses have a medical benefit.

7:50 a.m. — Tom starts for work. The federally mandated seat belt alarm on his Audi sedan doesn't make a shrill buzz when he turns the ignition key. It's been disconnected. "It's my way of protesting the system," he says.

7:55 a.m. — Driving to work, Tom recalls the story of how a federal safety inspector ordered the wearing of hardhats and installation of guardrails at the workshop of the Trolley Museum in Kennebunkport, Maine. During the family's summer vacations, Tom spends much of his time working as a volunteer in restoring old trolley cars.

"They probably did us a favor, but, my Lord, it makes you think. They've even gotten to trolley museums," he says.

8:14 a.m. — Nancy backs her Volvo station wagon out of the garage on the way to take Jennifer to school. She pulls a small greyish box out of the glove compartment, presses its button and the garage door closes.

The box is a low-powered radio transmitter, a Wickes model 116-56, which was built according to meet Federal Communications Commission standards.

But FCC rules are just not something Nancy thinks about. She notices the label on the back of the transmitter for the first time: "This label is required by FCC rules. Do not remove."

8:19 a.m.—Jennifer carries her homemade lunch of ham-and-tomato sandwich into the Union Terrace School. Many other students at Jennifer's public school will eat a lunch prepared at the school cafeteria, federally subsidized at about 23 cents for each lunch.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture requires that, to qualify for the subsidy, the school must serve a "Type A" lunch, which the department specifies must contain 2 ounces of meat or a meat substitute, ¾ cup of at least two vegetables or fruits, bread, butter and a half pint of milk.

8:35 a.m. — The federal government is constantly looking over Nancy's shoulder as she buys the family groceries at the big, brilliantly illuminated Shop Rite supermarket.

Nancy picks up a two-pound jar of Skippy peanut butter, which the FDA says can be called peanut butter because it is 90 per cent peanuts. Any less, the FDA says, it must be called "peanut spread."

The label on the can of sliced peaches lists the vitamins, minerals and calories that each serving of the fruit contains. The FDA is again responsible.

The Department of Agriculture set the standard which determines that the eye-of-the-round roast Nancy buys is "choice" rather than "prime." And it inspected the farm which was home for the cow that was the source for the $1.87-a-pound beef.

These regulations are not on Nancy's mind as she shops.

"I'm looking for food that I think is nutritional. I don't care what the government says is right," she explains. "I don't listen to Ralph Nader either."

12:17 p.m. — As if to underline her statements, Nancy makes her second shopping stop of the day at the Allentown Farmers Market, where mostly Pensylvania grown produce is sold in stalls in the open-air market, largely free from federal control.

Nancy buys apples and cheese.

Both are sold by farmers under federal agricultural marketing orders, which are designed to control supply and allocate income among producers. The federal government also props up the price of cheese by keeping foreign cheese out of the country and by buying quantities of American cheese when prices fall.

Much of the produce available at the market avoids much federal regulation, for it is produced and sold inside Pennsylvania. For example, there is meat on sale that is not USDA inspected, because it is not shipped across state lines and thus is not in interstate commerce.

1:10 p.m. — Tom goes over a report at his office. It shows, based on a poll of the company's supervisory officers, that 23 federal bodies either receive reports from Pennsylvania Power and Light or affect its business in some way. The Agriculture Department loans money for rural electric service, the Environmental Protection Agency controls smokestack pollutants at generating stations, the Federal Power Commission controls wholesale prices on interstate sales of electricity to other utilities, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission wants to know about PP&L's minority-group employes ... the list goes on.

So numerous are the government connections that PP&L has launched a project, in which Tom is involved, to consider whether to set up a new company department to handle all contacts with federal and state authorities.

1:25 p.m. — Nancy sits in the family room talking to a visitor about the EPA's ban on the insecticide DDT, which she blames for a plague of mosquitoes at their rented vacation home for the past few summers. "They don't spray at the beach anymore," she says.

The bites particularly bother her daughter. "Jennifer's eyes have been swollen shut."

8:30 p.m. — Friends begin to arrive for a small holiday gathering. The children watch a Christmas special on television, the ads for which would be screened for misleading statements under proposed Federal Trade Commission regulations. Tom pours drinks. The alcohol is measured and taxed by the Treasury Deparment.

Throughout this day and every day the Ruddells, like any other family in America, are affected by federal regulations when they sleep, eat, work, drive, shop or play.

The Jungle Jim.

(Smirnoff, creme de banana, milk.)

You can't grow up in America without discovering how beautifully bananas go with milk.

But is there any reason why in our adult years that gold-white taste should become a mere memory? Our search for an answer led us to a drink called The Jungle Jim. And only one thing caused us a moment's hesitation in recommending it to our friends everywhere:

We hope that because The Jungle Jim does conjure pleasant memories of bananas in cream, people won't forget they're putting away two ounces of liquor.

The Jungle Jim.

To make a Jungle Jim: pour 1 oz. Smirnoff, 1 oz. creme de banana and 1 oz. milk into a short glass with ice. Stir.

Smirnoff leaves you breathless®

What to do if you should ever smell natural gas.

Let's face it, our product is no Chanel #5.

And it's a good thing. The easily detectable odor of natural gas helps you discover even a small leak.

And if that ever happens to you, do this:

If the smell is slight, and it's near an appliance, it may be nothing more than a pilot light that's blown out. But if there's any doubt about it, give us a call.

If the smell is strong, open the windows and doors and get out.

And don't light any matches or turn anything electrical on or off, not even the lights. It could cause a spark.

Alert other people in the building or nearby.

Then, call the Gas Company or your Fire Department from a nearby phone.

If the gas odor is outdoors it could be even more serious than an indoor leak, so be sure to call us right away. Don't leave it for others to do.

THE gas COMPANY

By the way, natural gas is naturally odorless. We add the bad smell so leaks can be detected.

How many other companies do you know that deliberately make their product smell bad?

Tears in eyes of this Mexican tenant farmer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Ruben Ochoa Magana left Tuesday on the lonely 2,000-mile bus ride home to his village of Los Reyes in Michoacan, Mexico.

An airplane brought him to San Diego last week after Ochoa had borrowed $320 at 12 per cent interest.

The urgency was his 16-year-old son, Ruben, oldest of the 12 children who helps Ochoa till their patron's lands with an ox and plow. As tenant farmers, they repay him with half their crops of corn and strawberries, pulling together a total of $56 a week.

The crop was bad last season, and storms destroyed the cornfields of Ruben's cousins in the state of Jalisco to the west.

Maybe God will help us, Ruben told his parents in announcing he and four of the cousins would travel to the United States two weeks ago.

The father borrowed 1,000 pesos—equal to $80—and, after reaching Tijuana, the travelers paid $65 to a man who helped them sneak across the border just before midnight.

In the darkness two miles into the United States, a gang of young toughs attacked them March 7, took the $85 which remained and left Ruben badly wounded.

A police officer took Ruben to San Diego's University Hospital where doctors say his severed spine will prevent him from walking again.

The hospital costs, expected to reach into the thousands of dollars, will be paid by San Diego County.

"I was so sad when I was coming here," his 43-year-old father said before heading home.

"I thought he would be all alone with no one to help. But now I see they take better care of him than if he had been born here."

Mojave eyed for solar test

BAKERSFIELD (AP) — The Mojave Desert in eastern Kern and Los Angeles counties is being considered for a National Solar Energy Research Institute, the Kern County Board of Trade says.

The area is among three sites in the nation with the highest percentage of sunlight and heat, the trade board said Tuesday.

Locations in seven other states are being considered for the $1 billion program sponsored by the Federal Energy Research and Development Administration, the trade board added.

The board of trade here is cooperating with its sister agency in Antelope Valley to promote the Mojave Desert area for the project that would provide up to 1,500 jobs, an announcement said.

Baseball finally cries 'Play Ball!'

NEW YORK (AP) — Play ball!

That familiar cry of spring was finally sounded by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Wednesday night and seconded by players union boss Marvin Miller, and if today's official start of spring training is some 2½ weeks late, the scheduled April 8 opening of the regular season seems assured.

From Florida to California, the 24 major league teams prepared to go to work in earnest today with only three weeks to prepare for the start of the game which seems in danger of being replaced as the so-called national pastime by court battles and labor disputes.

Thanks to Kuhn's dramatic decree ordering the owners to open the training camps "without further delay," baseball today comes out the smoky, rhetoric-filled labor-management meeting rooms and into the sunlight where it belongs.

Most teams were expected to begin serious workouts today and at least one club official said the short-circuited exhibition season could get under way as soon as Sunday.

"I think this is a constructive step," Miller said when he returned to his New York home from Tampa, Fla., late Wednesday night and was informed of Kuhn's order.

Asked if this meant the season would open as scheduled April 8 with Houston at Cincinnati in the National League and New York at Milwaukee in the American, Miller replied:

"I think so. There's been no threat of a strike by the players. The whole thing has been an owners' lockout."

Kuhn's action came several hours after the executive board of the Major League Baseball Players Association, meeting in Tampa, again urged the opening of the camps and the resumption of the stalemated contract negotiations with the owners.

At the same time, the executive board declined to either accept or reject the owners' "best and final" contract offer of Monday.

However, a spokesman for Kuhn said the commissioner had made up his mind before Miller informed the owners' player relations committee of his executive board's decision . . . or non-decision.

"Because I think it is now vital that spring training get under way without further delay, I have directed that all camps be opened at the earliest possible time," Kuhn said.

"While nobody is more disappointed than I that we do not have solid progress to a final agreement, the fans are the most important people around and their interests now become paramount. Opening the camps and starting the season on time is what they want."

Calvin Griffith, owner of the Minnesota Twins, said he hoped his team could play its first exhibition game Sunday against the Boston Red Sox.

"This isn't as much time as I would like to have, naturally," said Manager Darrell Johnson of the American League champion Red Sox, who open the season April 9. "The regulars will need about 2½ weeks to get ready, but most of the pitchers will need more time. But we can overcome that just by being careful with them at the start of the season."

Johnson said he won't let any pitcher go more than five innings when the regular season begins and will use three or four pitchers a game "until their arms are as strong as they normally would be at that time of the year. I won't rush anybody for fear of injuries, but we'll get our work done."

Miller also cautioned against rushing the players into exhibition game action.

"I think the various clubs would be well-advised to act with prudence and discretion," he said. "I hope the players will not allow themselves into doing what they're not ready to do."

At least one manager, Danny Ozark of the Philadelphia Phillies, was considering sprint drills and intrasquad game during the day and basic fundamental drills at night until the exhibition games begin to make up for lost time.

General Manager Phil Seghi of the Cleveland Indians felt three weeks was plenty of time to prepare for the season.

"Are you kidding?" he said. "Certainly it's enough time. The only reason spring training starts so early is because of tradition. Years ago, teams used to break camp early and barnstorm northward during the last week or two playing exhibition games. But we don't do that any more so three weeks is plenty of time."

However, it likely will take more than three weeks to settle the dispute that led to the owners' refusing to open the training camps as scheduled March 1. Another owners' meeting is scheduled here Saturday.

The players' executive board asked that the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service be brought into the negotiations. The players representatives also requested that the basic agreement, which has expired, be extended until a new contract can be worked out and that the no-strike, no-lockout provision be reinstated.

The owners were stunned Tuesday when Miller announced his personal rejection of their latest offer which contained the "one-and-one" concession which would have made any major leaguer a free agent by playing out one option year after the expiration of his signed contract. Many would have become free agents at the end of the 1976 season and virtually all by the end of the 1977 campaign.

But Miller and many player representatives were dissatisfied because the proposal would have allowed free agents to negotiate with a maximum of eight teams while the arbitrator's decision in the historic Messersmith-McNally case last December gave pitcher Andy Messersmith of the Los Angeles Dodgers the right to deal with all 24 clubs.

AIN'T IT GRAND! Spring training began today in most major league baseball camps. Giants' manager Bill Rigney (R) and batting instructor Hank Sauer (L) discuss plans behind batting cage.

Dodgers, Halos begin training

From PB wire services

The Angels will officially get spring training started a day ahead of the Dodgers.

The Halos were to hold their first drills this afternoon at their Holtville camp. The Dodgers are slated to have their first official workout Friday although an "informal workout" was likely today.

Most of the Dodgers players are already in Vero Beach, Fla. where the Dodgers train. Catcher Joe Ferguson, the only unsigned Dodger, also is in camp.

The Angels have signed 31 of their 39 players and began workouts with 10 non-roster players, including former La Verne star John Verhoeven, Monday.

Sports boom in Seattle

Don Andersen has one of the best jobs a public relations man can have.

He doesn't have to be concerned about selling his product — the Seattle Seahawks.

Just three months ago, Andersen had the rough task of explaining why the World Football League and Southern California Sun collapsed at a Pomona service club luncheon.

It didn't take long for Andersen to land another football job. He actually had a choice of the two new National Football League franchises in Tampa and Seattle.

"I had a nice offer to join John McKay in Tampa," Andersen said, "but I decided to stay on the West Coast. I knew a lot of people in Seattle because of my years advancing for USC."

One of the side benefits of attending the NCAA Division II Regionals in Tacoma with Cal Poly's basketball team was the opportunity to visit Andersen and to tour Seattle's impressive new domed stadium.

Andersen is happy about his choice even though it meant leaving Southern California. Before joining the WFL and the Sun, the publicist served the CIF and USC.

It was a beautiful day for the visit. Andersen has an office in a building overlooking Lake Union. Below, one could view seaplanes taking off and landing.

"I love this," Andersen said. "I think the bad weather in Seattle is overrated. It's not as bad as I thought."

Seattle is also a boom city for sports.

Even though the University of Washington hasn't won the Pac-8 football title in a decade, the Huskies always draw more than 50,000 a home game.

Sonics rate third

The Sonics rank third in attendance in the National Basketball Association and the Sounders have already sold more than 30,000 tickets for their Kingdome debut next month against Pele and the New York Cosmos.

But the Seahawks' story is unreal.

The new NFL franchise sold 59,000 season tickets — a record for a first-year club — in a matter of days.

"We will be able to seat 64,000 fans but we wanted to keep at least 5,000 tickets available on a game-to-game basis," Andersen said. "We already have a waiting list of over 5,000 for season tickets."

The Seahawks will serve the entire Pacific Northwest.

"We're a regional franchise," Andersen added. "We have over 250 season ticket holders in Oregon and 200 in Alaska. Travel agents in Alaska are planning weekend tours."

All of this expansion in sports — an American League baseball franchise is promised for 1977 — is due to the new domed stadium.

The Kingdome is located in the heart of the city within walking distance of the major attractions. Fans can even come to the games by ferries.

Not as expensive

"Our dome is not nearly as expensive as the one in New Orleans," Andersen said. "It will end up costing approximately $60 million. This stadium is designed more for the fans rather than to entertain the public with plush luxuries."

The Kingdome reminds one of seating at Anaheim Stadium. The seats will be close to the action.

All kinds of attractions are scheduled this summer.

The dome opens a week from Saturday with a special Bicentennial music pageant. Later on, the schedule includes a Billy Graham Crusade, rodeo, circus, motor sports and music concerts.

Obviously, one problem with the Seahawks will be the talent. Expansion teams need time to be respectable.

"We're just hoping to be competitive this first season," Andersen said. "We don't necessarily mean winning but we are hoping to make the games close like 35-28."

Seattle will compete in the NFC West in its first season. The official NFL schedule won't be released for awhile but the Seahawks have scheduled pre-season games at home against the 49ers, Rams and Chargers in an effort to build West Coast rivalries.

Former Cal Poly quarterback Jim Zorn has already moved to the Seattle area to get ready for his duty with the Seahawks.

Andersen is using Zorn and former Sun wide receiver Dan Williams to promote the club. For instance, they will be modeling the team's uniforms at the dome opening.

"Our scouts were impressed with Zorn from what they saw of him in the Dallas camp last year," Andersen said. "We feel he will help us."

West Regionals offer a lot

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — The NCAA West Regionals offer something for every college basketball fan.

For instance, there is perennial champion UCLA hosting the event at Pauley Pavilion in what is sometimes referred to as the UCLA Invitational.

Added to that is upstart Pepperdine, a team which has received more publicity and attention in one week than it has had in a decade.

Pauley fans will also be treated by watching those speedsters from Nevada Las Vegas, the highest scoring team in NCAA history with 110.6 points a game.

Completing the field is Arizona, a team displaying physical strength.

It's also a tournament featuring coaches with the nicknames of Clean Gene, the Shark and the Fox.

In case you don't know, the names refer to UCLA's Gene Bartow, Las Vegas' Jerry Tarkanian and Arizona's Fred Snowden. Apparently Pepperdine's Gary Colson isn't well known enough yet to acquire such a colorful moniker.

Nevada Las Vegas (29-1) will battle Arizona (23-8) in this evening's opener at 7 p.m. followed by the contest between neighbors Pepperdine (22-5) and UCLA (24-4) at 9 p.m.

Tickets at Pauley Pavilion can only be obtained through scalpers but KCOP (Channel 13) will carry the UCLA live tonight at 9 followed by a tape of UNLV-Arizona at 11.

Tonight's winners will return to Pauley Pavilion at 1:15 p.m. Saturday (KNBC, Channel 4) for the right to represent the West next weekend at the national finals in Philadelphia.

There is no third place game in the Regionals this year.

Based on its record in NCAA play, UCLA must be considered the favorite. The only big question about the Bruins is its change in leadership from John Wooden to Bartow.

Under Wooden, the Bruins won 10 of the last 12 NCAA national championships in one of the most remarkable records ever compiled in the world of sports.

UCLA also enjoys the home court advantage this weekend. The Bruins have lost only three games on their home court in the 10 years of Pauley Pavilion but Oregon snapped a 98-game home winning streak for UCLA last month.

"I'm happy to be home," Bartow said. "We had one of our best practices of the season Wednesday. We moved the ball quickly and very precisely."

Bartow knows his team has some of the best talent in America.

"We've had a fine year," he said of the Pacific-8 Conference champs. "We have two of the greatest forwards in the country in Richard Washington and Marques Johnson."

Pepperdine, now located in a scenic spot above the ocean in Malibu, hasn't played UCLA since 1954 but the Waves are looking forward to this opportunity.

"In the last three days, I've received more attention than in all my 20 years of coaching," Colson joked at the press conference Wednesday night. "It's nice but I have to try to stay off the ego trip."

Pepperdine is no fluke.

The Waves are the only team to defeat Las Vegas this season and Pep had to win three overtime games — including the showdown at San Francisco — to take the West Coast Athletic Conference championship.

"We've got a lot of heart but no names," Colson said.

Pep's big man is Brazilian Olympic star Marcos Leite while the playmaker is freshman guard Flintie Williams.

Tarkanian brought down the house when he revealed his strategy for the Arizona game.

"We may come out and hold the ball," Tark said with a straight face. "We might even work for the last shot."

When everybody got through laughing, Tarkanian added, "Seriously, we could play with a 10-second clock the way we put up the ball."

UNLV, which has outscored its opponents by an average of 22.4 points per game, was held under 100 points only eight times this season. The biggest explosion was 164 against an outmanned Hawaii-Hilo team.

"We're not big but we are very quick," Tarkanian said. "This is the hardest working team I have ever coached. They play with a lot of emotion."

Tarkanian, who has compiled a coaching record of 393-45 in his JC and college career, will be conducting a basketball camp at La Verne College this summer.

Arizona has the power in the tournament led by Bob Elliott (6-10) and Al Fleming (6-8).

Snowden, the first black coach at a major school, has built a power in his four years in Tucson after compiling a remarkable prep record in Detroit.

At coaches' luncheon

Track athletes honored

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

Cal Poly's Walt Scroggy and Pomona High's Hank Zibell were honored Wednesday at the Progress Bulletin's weekly track and field luncheon at the Castaway Restaurant.

Scroggy was chosen the College Athlete of the Week by the coaches and writers in attendance and Zibell, the High School Athlete of the Week, received a plaque from Pomona Elks Lodge 789.

A victory in last week's Biola Invitational Decathlon earned the distinction for Scroggy. He amassed over 6,000 points in a performance that included a high jump of 6 feet, 5 inches and a pole vault of 15-6.

That height made Scroggy Cal Poly's second-best all-time pole vaulter behind current teammate Mark Kegans, who has gone 16 feet. Scroggy, a product of South Hills High and Mt. San Antonio College, cleared 15 feet Saturday in a dual meet against UC Riverside.

Zibell broke his own school record Thursday when he put the shot 61 feet, 4 inches in a dual meet against Chino. He then recorded a 59-11½ Saturday as he and three teammates set a new four-man team shot put record for the Steeler Relays in Fontana with a combined distance of 197-5.

A fullback and linebacker on Pomona's football team, Zibell is currently playing centerfield for the Red Devils' baseball squad in addition to his track activities. His batting average stands at around .450.

"I think baseball helps my shot putting," said the 6-foot-2½, 226-pound senior. It keeps me active and helps my speed. One of the things helping me in the shot put this year is better speed.

"My goal for the rest of the year is just to work hard and do the best I can in every meet."

Zibell has signed a national letter of intent for football at the University of Washington.

"I'd like to get out of the area," he said, "and I liked the people and the location in Seattle. "I don't know yet whether I'll be a shot putter at Washington besides playing football. It depends on how hard the classes are and so on."

Quoting the coaches:

GENE ABERNATHY, Pomona High: "Hank has grown a lot since last year in both size and maturity. He's much easier to coach because he knows exactly what he's doing and he concentrates on it. The key to his success is his weight training program. He does 250 pounds in the military press and bench presses 350 at the end of a workout.

"Another key is confidence. He knows that he can go out any day and throw 60 feet. His playing baseball is fine with me because he comes off the baseball field a little late and I can give him more individual attention.

"We're going to take the meets one at a time. There are some fine teams in the league. Our coaching staff has come together this year and so have the athletes. We get help and support from the administration and the other students. We are really a team at Pomona."

JOHN NORTON, MSAC: "Our most important dual meet of the season will be Friday against Fullerton. Fullerton barely beat Grossmont last week, 73-72.

"We'll have difficulty primarily in the distances. They are a very strong team. But our athletes and coaches are really looking forward to the meet.

VINCE O'BOYLE, Citrus: "We won the meet that will probably decide our conference championship when we beat Palomar last week, 86½-59½. We got excellent performances from Michael Daniels, Mike Caballero and Harold Carter. Carter wasn't doing too well and was down to his last long jump when he went 24-7, the best in the state so far this year. We're happy to get that meet out of the way.

"We have a lot of depth and that should get us past San Bernardino Friday. We shouldn't have any real problems after that in dual meets. We've come a long way at Citrus."

JIM GEORGE, Poly: "We're going to Mexico City next Thursday. We'll go against the Mexican Olympic Team and Brigham Young down there.

"We lost to UC Riverside by a point last week and all we needed to beat them was a sprinter. We expect to have two 9.8 sprinters eligible next quarter, in about 10 days. We'll also have Lonnie Carr, who can shot put 55 feet and long jump 24.

"We'll be a different team when some of these guys are eligible."

PAT MULCAHY, Pomona-Pitzer: "We set a school record for the most points in two days — 470 points. We had two double-dual meets in two days because of a rainout.

"I was happy that some of our guys did well. Bob Orell threw the javelin 225-11 and Kent Namikas went 47-1 in the triple jump. (Both are national qualifying marks.)

"We go to Redlands Saturday. Redlands will be our toughest meet in terms of winning but we should win it. Occidental will have to use its best team to beat us.

"We have about 10 women in our program who are just starting but are doing very well.

"I had some trouble with a sheep dog last week. It started chasing one of our athletes in the 220, so I kicked it and sprained my ankle, flipped over the dog and landed on my hip."

'Super Fan' visits Elks

Baseball will be the subject of the evening on Friday when the Pomona Elks Lodge Baseball Tournament committee honors the coaches at their annual banquet. Dinner will be served at 8 p.m. in the Pomona Elks Lodge ballroom.

Ed "Super Fan" Bieler of KABC will be the guest speaker. The event precedes the 41st Annual Tournament which will be played this year on April 10-14.

Highlight of the evening will be the dedication. As is tradition, tournament officials have kept the selection secret.

Last year's tournament was dedicated to the citizens of Pomona in the city's centennial year. The award was initiated during the 28th tournament in 1963. Past selections include: Stan Acres, 1963; Kenny Hubbs, 1964; Carl Bruner, 1965; Merle Wooten, 1966; Hugh Thomas, 1967; "Pop" Sauter, 1968; Ray Maxwell, 1969; "Zeke" Keough, 1970; Bob Tafoya, 1971; Woody Hansen, 1972; Jean Wooten, 1973; and Phil La Pierre, 1974.

Banquet tickets may be purchased at the door. The Elks Lodge is located at 1471 West Holt Avenue.

Lopez will fight Gomez

INGLEWOOD (AP) — Featherweights Danny Lopez and Octavio Gomez have signed for an April 24 bout in Inglewood, a Forum spokesman announced Wednesday.

The winner will earn a shot at David Kotey, the World Boxing Council featherweight champ, the spokesman said.

In a match early last year, Gomez, from Mexico City, won a decision over Lopez. Gomez is ranked the WBC's top featherweight contender, while Lopez is rated fifth.

Lopez, from Los Angeles, has a 29-3 record, while Gomez has 55 victories against nine defeats.

Connors performs as figured

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors performed as expected in his first outing at the $100,000 Independent Players Association tennis tournament, downing Romania's Ion Tiriac 6-0, 6-4.

Connors had more trouble with the cold air Wednesday night than with Tiriac, winning nine straight games before Tiriac finally managed to hold serve midway through the second set.

A crowd of 4,659 endured a chilly 58-degree night at the La Costa Racquet Club to watch Connors dispose of Tiriac, one of the largest crowds ever at a San Diego area tennis event.

Later, Connors complained midly about the weather.

"It's not as easy to get used to the cold weather at night," he said. "It takes awhile to get loose."

He also rejected suggestions that he eased up a bit on Tiriac halfway through the final set.

"If I could have won the match without losing a game, I would have," he said.

Connors is expected to meet another Romanian, the hot-tempered Ilie Nastase, in the final competition for the $30,000 first prize.

In other Wednesday matches, Erik Van Dillen upset Marty Riessen 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 and in a match originally scheduled for Tuesday night, Roscoe Tanner defeated Butch Walts of Southern Cal 7-6, 6-3.

Alex "Sandy" Mayer rallied to beat Haroon Rahim of Pakistan 7-6, 3-6, 6-2 and Peter Fleming of UCLA defeated John Whitlinger 6-2, 6-7, 6-2.

'Bama will play it cool

By Associated Press

Indiana has the kind of record and talent that can blow your mind, says Alabama basketball coach C.M. Newton, who hopes his Crimson Tide doesn't blow its cool when it plays the top-ranked Hoosiers tonight.

The Indiana-Alabama game will be one of two NCAA Mideast Regional games at Baton Rouge, La. The winners play Saturday for the right to advance to the national semifinals March 27 in Philadelphia.

The other Mideast game will pit No. 2 Marquette, 26-1, against Western Michigan, 20-3.

"We're playing the best team in the country without any question," said Newton, whose Tide has a 23-4 record compared to Indiana's 28-0. "To have gone unbeaten over the past two regular seasons like Indiana has done is mind-boggling. But if we do our part, it will be a good game."

Indiana, which has two All-Americans — forward Scott May and center Kent Benson—finds itself in what is probably the toughest of the four regional tournaments.

"About the Mideast Regional being the toughest, I've found there is no use thinking aout things you have no control over," said Hoosier Coach Bobby Knight.

Indiana, which was 30-0 last year, then lost to Kentucky in the regional final, is favored to reach the regional final again, this time probably against Marquette.

Rutgers, 29-0, the only other unbeaten team in the tournament, is a solid favorite to win the East Regional at Greensboro, N.C., after just barely qualifying with a 56-55 over Princeton. The Scarlet Knights, ranked fourth nationally, will play Connecticut while DePaul, 20-8, will meet Virginia Military, 21-0.

Connecticut advanced by beating Hofstra in overtime while both DePaul and VMI got into the regionals with upsets—DePaul over Virginia and VMI over Tennessee.

Another team expected to have a much easier time than Indiana in reaching the final round is defending champion UCLA. The fifth-ranked Bruins, 24-4 and the cream of the West Regionals at their own Pauley Pavilion, have to overcome Pepperdine, 22-5, a team sparked by a Brazilian, center Marcos Leite, and the son of a famous football father, Ollie Matson Jr.

"I'm happy to be home," said UCLA Coach Gene Bartow said. "But I'm not sure that the home court means as much in a playoff situation as it does during the regular season."

The Bruins had won 98 straight at home, including playoff games, before losing to Oregon this past season.

Favored to meet UCLA in Saturday's regional final is No. 3 Nevada-Las Vegas, which meets Arizona, 23-8, a 98-94 loser to Las Vegas during the regular season.

Notre Dame, 23-5; Michigan, 22-6, and Missouri, 25-4, all of which advanced with final-second victories, will be in action in the Midwest Regional at Louisville, Ky. Notre Dame opposes Michigan while Missouri opposes Texas Tech, 25-5.

Notre Dame beat Cincinnati 74-73 on Toby Knight's tip-in at the buzzer. Michigan got past Wichita Sate 74-73 on Rickey Green's 20-foot basket with six seconds left. Missouri nipped Washington 69-67 on Jim Kennedy's two foul shots in the final minute. Texas Tech "romped" 69-56 over Syracuse.

Jabbar stopped by fouls

MILWAUKEE (AP) —A mass defensive assault on Los Angeles' Kareem Abdul Jabbar and a one-man scoring burst by Milwaukee's Gary Brokow boosted the Bucks to a National Basketball Association victory Wednesday.

But Milwaukee center Elmore Smith, who outscored the Lakers' 7-foot-2 star, said it was a little easier because Abdul-Jabbar was shackled with fouls.

With Abdul-Jabbar held to 21 points, only eight after intermission, the Bucks were able to overcome Los Angeles 109-96, with Brokaw accounting for nine points in a 2½-minute spurt.

"We had a lot of help," Smith said. "We planned to sag on him and cut off his hook lane. When he got in foul trouble, it took a lot out of him."

Abdul-Jabbar was tagged with three fouls before the game was 10 minutes old, and got a fourth foul in the third period. He got a fifth with the Bucks in front 85-77, and had to play cautiously the final seven minutes.

Smith, with 22 points, also had to be wary of fouling Abdul-Jabbar, coach Larry Costello said.

"Elmore was afraid of foul trouble," Costello said. "But we doubled up on him at the right times, and he didn't get the shots he wanted to. After his fifth foul' Kareem was a little cautious, not as aggressive."

Abdul-Jabbar was asked if the Bucks, with whom he formerly played, weren't using illegal tactics to restrain him.

"They were in a zone," he said, "and they did as good a job as one one disguising it."

Dave Meyers, who scored 10 points in the final period, chuckled about the team work on Abdul-Jabbar.

"You are supposed to be within six feet of your man," Meyers said, "and I guess everybody was six or eight feet from Kareem."

Abdul-Jabbar outrebounded Smith 18-11, and Los Angeles led 57-55 at intermission. But Milwaukee picked up 31 points at the free throw line to the Lakers' 10.

Brokaw, who didn't score in the first half, was the chief ingredient in a 13-point Milwaukee surge that converted a 68-65 Lakers lead into a 78-73 Bucks advantage in 2½ minutes.

Van Breda Kolff snorts at Jazz loss

By The Associated Press

Apparently it only takes a couple of days for the New Orleans Jazz to forget most of their basketball lessons.

"We won five games in six nights and should have been tired. Then we have two days off and come out like pussycats," Coach Butch van Breda Kolff snorted after the Jazz dropped a 112-107 National Basketball Association decision to the crippled New York Knicks Wednesday night.

"We just can't stand prosperity. Instead of remembering how we win, we revert back to the same bad habits and the same bad shots. I keep telling them you can't shoot your way back into the game—you have to play your way back into the game."

John Gianelli scored 24 points and grabbed 13 rebounds in dominating three New Orleans centers and pacing the Knicks, who played without All-Star guard Walt Frazier, hospitalized with a sore back. Pete Maravich led the Jazz with 28 points.

Elsewhere, the Milwaukee bucks whipped the Los Angeles Lakers 109-96, the Philadelphia 76ers downed the Chicago Bulls 108-101, the Seattle SuperSonics trimmed the Buffalo Braves 122-111 and the Houston Rockets trounced the Atlanta Hawks 124-112.

76ers 108, Bulls 101

Doug Collins' lay-up gave the 76ers a 75-74 lead late in the third period and George McGinnis' shooting helped them widen the lead in the fourth quarter. Fred Carter led the 76ers with 24 points and Collins had 23. Chicago's Mickey Johnson topped all scorers with 28.

SuperSonics 122, Braves 111

Seattle climbed into a share of second place in the Pacific Division despite a season-high 52 points by Buffalo center Bob McAdoo, matching his career best. Seattle trailed 100-95 with 5:57 remaining but guard Slick Watts, second in the league in assists, began to penetrate Buffalo's defense and Seattle gained a 101-100 lead. Seattle was led by Fred Brown's 37 points.

Rockets 124, Hawks 112

Houston broke a 110-110 tie late in the game with 12 straight points. The Rockets had six players in double figures, led by Rudy Tomjanovich with 24 points. Atlanta, minus both centers and having both starting forwards foul out, was led by Lou Hudson's 25.

Issue still not settled

Miller was asked Wednesday why the executive board did not take a vote on the issue, as expected.

"The document (owners' proposal) is incomplete," he explained. "It left too many open issues to be discussed. There was nothing to vote on. We considered the owners' proposal carefully and found it reflects considerable progress. But additional work is required by negotiation. In the interim, there is no justification for the training camp lockout."

Miller said the owners justified their lockout by claiming they feared a strike following spring training similar to one several years ago.

Although the owners had insisted they would not change "one colon, not one semicolon," from their Monday contract offer, owner Brad Corbett of the Texas Rangers said he felt the opening of the camps would increase the chances of reaching a settlement.

Corbett said he anticipated some owners would be dissatisfied with Kuhn's decision to open the camps. "Some of them wanted to take a hard line" in the negotiations, he said.

Catcher Tim McCarver of the Phillies summed it up for the many players who have been working out on their own on college fields and community diamonds wearing sweatsuits and other makeshift uniforms.

"It will be a pleasure to work out without car keys in my pocket," he said.

Poly's women go to finals

Cal Poly's women's basketball team will participate in the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) Small College National Tournament in Ashland, Ohio beginning Wednesday, and continuing through Saturday, March 27.

Coach Darlene May's squad is competing in the 16-team tourney by virtue of the winning the Western AIAW Regionals at San Jose State last week. The Poly team defeated Nevada Reno, 71-47, and Biola College, 95-53, in the championship game to win the title. Biola will also attend the nationals in an at-large berth.

The Broncos, who are seeded fourth, will meet defending champion Phillips University (Enid, Oklahoma) in the 11 a.m. game on Wednesday, March 24. Phillips handed Poly their only loss in last year's tourney by a score of 54-37.

"I feel we are a much stronger team than last year and have a good chance of winning the national title," May stated. "The type of competition we've faced this year (UCLA, Cal State Fullerton, Cal State Long Beach) has really heoped us. We've proved that we can beat good teams, or any team for that matter, as long as we put in our best effort."

The Bronco squad is led by 6-2 junior center Mary Reichert who averaged 13.1 points per game and 12.3 rebounds, and 6-1 sophomore Barbara Thaller with 11.4 points per game and 7.3 rebounds. Also with double figure scoring averages are 6-0 junior Linda Scheenstra (10.2) and 5-11 sophomore Joan Uhl (10.5).

"I understand that Phillips' team is not as strong as last year and they also haven't played in as strong a conference as we have," May said. "The experience we gained last year in the nationals, which was the first time we ever went, will help us immensely. I definitely feel that the outcome this year will be much different," she added.

Poly ended regular season play with a 15-4 overall and 10-3 league record.

NEXT SATURDAY, AREA G OF THE AMERICAN YOUTH SOCCER ORGANIZATION (AYSO) will hold the finals of the team championship playoffs. The contenders will be the regional team champions that have survived three weeks of tough area competition.

Pomona, Region 30, will host Saturday's games with times and fields to be announced later. The finalists that will be squaring off against each other are as follows:

Division 6 boys (7-8), Claremont Jaws vs. Ontario Cobras; Division 5 boys (9-10), Upland Roadrunners vs. Chino Cosmos; Division 4 boys (11-12), Upland Astros vs. Pomona Thunderbirds; Division 3 boys (13-14), Claremont Cosmos vs. Pomona Raiders; Division 2 boys (15-16), Ontario has already qualified.

Division 4 girls (7-9), Diamond Bar Goldrushers already qualified; Division 3 girls (10-12), Diamond Bar Silverbullets vs. A.C.E. Jaguars; Division 2 girls (13-15), Claremont Thunderbirds vs. Diamond Bar Mean Machine.

On Sunday, the All-Star finalists of Area G will be vieing for the opportunity to go on to the national finals. Sunday's games will be hosted by Claremont, Region 3. The contenders are the following; Division 6 boys, Diamond Bar vs. Claremont; Division 5 boys, A.C.E. vs. Diamond Bar; Division 4 boys, Claremont vs. Upland; Division 3 boys, Claremont vs. Pomona.

Upland has already copped the Division 4 girls championship; Division 3 girls, Claremont vs. Upland; Division 2 girls (round-robin), Upland vs. A.C.E., and Claremont vs. Diamond Bar.

As the AYSO playoffs approach the final stage, it is evident that Claremont, Upland, Diamond Bar, and Pomona are the strongest of the eight regions that make up Area G. The finalists will advance to the national playoffs that will conclude on April 25. There are many good games slated for this weekend and we suggest that you rake those leaves and tidy-up the garage before then so that you may be able to enjoy a full weekend of AYSO soccer.

CHAFFEY COLLEGE WILL OFFER YOU AN OPPORTUNITY to cap off a day of soccer this Saturday when it hosts El Camino City College in a 7:30 p.m. kickoff. The Panthers are going for their third straight win; they edged the eleven from MSAC in the season opener 3-2 and romped over Long Beach C.C. 10-0. El Camino tied their season opener and won their next three. Admission will be free.

In a preliminary game scheduled for a 5:45 p.m. kickoff, two teams from the Liga Americana de Football-Soccer will face each other; Real 28 from West L.A. vs. Club Mexico from La Puente.

Chaffey High School, on the other hand, has hung 'em up for the remainder of the year after ending in an enviable fourth place in CIF play. It is interesting to note that the type of play that catapulted the Bengals into the playoffs and the quarter finals contributed as well to its demise. The Chaffey eleven played with a stacked defense which often saw five fullbacks defending their net at the expense of their own forward line; this type of play developed by Italy in the late '60's, employed an extra fullback as a "sweeper" to clear away any ball that got by the normal defensive line. Hopefully a surprise counterattack or a surprise breakaway would give the team the one and possibly only goal needed to win the match.

Now let's look at Chaffey's playoff record. Against Santa Ana the game ended 1-1 the Ontarians won in overtime. Against So. Torrance, the Chaffeyites got their only and winning goal late in the game after a frustrated So. Torrance team lost their composure when their attacks were thwarted by the local's defense. In the quarterfinals, Chaffey again played defensively and won after having to go past overtime play and into a penalty kick situation. The semifinal game was won by El Centro when they proved to be better at penalty kicking at the end of yet another tie game. With a chance at third place, the Bengals again went into a tight defensive shell and lost the game after tieing 1-1 in regulation time and nine overtime periods.

We congratulate the team from Euclid Avenue on a fine season, and yet cannot help but admire the fine young talent that disciplined themselves to play within such a confining type of strategy.

Santa Barbara again took the CIF crown. This time they blanked El Centro 4-0.

THE U.S. OPEN CUP dates back to 1914 when the Brooklyn Field Club won the first one, and ever since, the struggle for the coveted Dewar's trophy, a symbol of the Open Cup has been an annual event. Last year the L.A. Maccabees defeated Inter Guliana to bring the cup to the West Coast. The struggle for the silver trophy is currently going on all over the nation with amateur, semi-pro, and pro teams knocking each other out of contention in single elimination matches.

Last Sunday, Benny Binshtok kicked the winning goal from 14 yards out with 22 minutes remaining in the game to give the defending champion, Maccabees, of the Greater Los Angeles Soccer League, a 2-1 victory over the Montebello Homenetmen. The win gave the Maccabees the Southern California district title.

Maccabee will next play San Francisco Athletic Club next Sunday at Daniels Field in San Pedro.

THE L.A. AZTEC'S 1976 schedule calls for 12 home games to be played at El Camino College, Torrance. The home opener will be on April 25 against the Rochester Lancers who have just announced the signing of Jogo Lopes Pedro to a two-year contract.

The 25-year old midfielder comes to the Lancers from CUF, a first-division team in Portugal. Pedro has also been a member of the under 23 National Team of his Portugal. The Lancers moved their training camp from the cold Finger Lakes region of the Empire State to balmier San Diego last Sunday. They will be training and quartered at United States International University.

Other home games for the Aztecs are on May 2, Rochester; May 9, Seattle; June 5, Portland; June 12, Vancouver; June 19, Tampa; June 26, Minnesota; July 3, San Antonio; July 10, St. Louis; July 18, Boston, July 25, San Jose, and Dallas closes out the regular season for the "Tangerines" on August 14.

When the Seattle Sounders visit the Southland they will be showing off their new acquisitions; they have recently signed former Canadian National Team goalkeeper Tony Chursky and their top two college draft choices for the 1976 season, All-American defender Matt O'Sullivan from Chico State, and University of Washington forward Ward Forrest.

MOVING OVER TO THE INTERNATIONAL ARENA we find Mexico just two points away from a flight to Montreal and the Olympics. The three finalists in the CONCACAF area comprised of North America, Central America and The Caribbean, are Mexico, Cuba, and Guatemala. (The U.S. was eliminated in earlier rounds within CONCACAF.) In the first of the two home-and-home round-robin games, Mexico defeated Cuba 4-1 at home and this week Mexico came from behind to tie the fired up Cubans 1-1 in Havana. If the North Americans to our south manage to defeat Guatemala in any of their two upcoming games, the Cubanos would be eliminated by virtue of the favorable goal average acquired by Mexico . . . In the fifth round of the Scottish Cup, Motherwell 2, Hibernian 1 and in the second replay of the quarter-finals, Hearts 2, Montrose 1 . . . In English League play Division 1, Arsenal and Newcastle ended in a 0-0 tie while Tottenham nipped Wolverhampton 1-0 . . . Spain — Real Madrid has taken a 5 point lead over Atletico and is well on its way toward the Spanish crown. Their latest victims were Sevilla by a 2-0 score . . . Germany — Udo Lattek, coach for Moenchengladbach believes that his team will eliminate Spain in today's match against Real Madrid; both teams are competing for the European Cup and in their previous encounter ended in a 2-2 deadlock.

Bearcats, Saints clash

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Bonita High is off and winging towards its third straight Hacienda League baseball crown, but the Bearcats' top rival for that title might well be in their own backyard.

Bonita will face local rival San Dimas Friday at San Dimas in the feature Hacienda attraction of the day. Other H.L. tilts slated for Friday have Alta Loma at Ontario, Sierra Vista at Walnut and Gladstone at Royal Oak. All those outings will start at 3:15 p.m.

The San Antonio League will also have a full slate of games, as Chino will visit Ganesha, Damien will travel to Pomona, Montclair will entertain Upland and Garey will be at Claremont. Those four will also get underway at 3:15 p.m.

Bonita and San Dimas always put on a good show in all sports and Friday afternoon's baseball tilt won't be an exception. The 'Cats carry a 2-0 league and 5-3 overall mark into the game, while the Saints stand at 1-1 in league and 5-2 on the year.

The game figures to feature a classic pitching matchup, as Bearcat ace righthander Bill Bumstead (3-0) is slated to go against Saint lefty Curt Burkhart (4-1).

"San Dimas will be up for us, they always are," noted Bearcat coach Dick Solomon. "Burkhart is one of the top pitchers in the valley, I know, I coached him this summer on the La Verne Legion team. He'd be tough."

Although no added incentive is necessary when the Saints play the Bearcats, the San Dimas squad figures to be super "up" for Friday's tilt following hurler Dennis Wetzel's no-hit job against Alta Loma on Tuesday. That win evened the S.D. league mark at 1-1 at a time when a loss would have been quite a blow to the Saints' Hacienda title hopes.

Burkhart lost to Royal Oak, 5-4, in the league opener last Friday but faulty fielding rather than Roman bats contributed to the defeat.

Bumstead will be coming off a three-hitter over Alta Loma. He's been the 'Cats "money pitcher" for three years, but a much-improved San Dimas nine could give him troubles.

One thing seems certain, Friday's result is unlikely to be like last year's game when Burkhart faced the 'Cats. On that occasion, they blasted him and the Saint relief pitching for 21 runs in a 21-3 triumph.

Walnut will be trying to hold on to at least a share of first place Friday as the unbeaten (2-0) Mustangs battle a tough foe in Sierra Vista. Bobby Cordova is expected to get the starting nod for coach Terry Murphy's crew.

Alta Loma and Ontario, both saddled with 0-2 H.L. marks, will try to get off the deck when they face one another Friday. Defending 2-A baseball champ Royal Oak, now 2-0 in league play, figures to make that record read 3-0 in Friday's game with mismatched Gladstone.

Top SAL attraction Friday could well be Montclair at Upland. Both are rated as top contenders for the league title.

The Cavs, disappointed losers to Claremont on Tuesday in the league opener, are expected to start Rich Labarge. Upland is likely to counter with Stan Smith.

Claremont will try to make it two in a row over Garey. The Vikings tied Ganesha 6-6 Tuesday but will have a rough assignment against senior southpaw Mil Pompa, who will start on the hill for the 'Pack. Ganesha will try to get a victory against visiting Chino, with Joe Madrigal the starting choice for the Giants.

Pomona, off to a 1-0 start, will host defending SAL champ Damien. Sophomore Richard Bustos is expected to start for the Spartans, with the Devils' starting choice unclear between Alan Wells and Mike Keegan.

Other prep tilts on tap Friday include Chaffey at Redlands in a key Citrus Belt League outing for the Tigers, Aquinas at Webb in an Arrowhead League toughie for the Gauls, Valley Christian at Ontario Christian, San Fernando Valley Christian vs. American Christian at Ralph Welch Park and Inland Christian at Calvery Baptist.

Those final two are Christian League contests. All of Friday's action will get underway at 3:15 p.m.

Wyoming hitters outslug Stags

The visiting University of Wyoming baseball team pounded out a 14-9 victory over Claremont-Mudd Wednesday afternoon in a game called on account of darkness after eight innings.

Wyoming scored four runs — two of them unearned — in the sixth inning to build up a 12-7 lead. Those runs, all off loser Steve Rodgriguez (0-1), came on two hits, two errors, a walk and a hit batsman.

The Stags had scored five runs in the third inning to knot the score at 6-6 after the visitors scored five in the top of the frame. A two-run triple by Wynn Moore and a one-run double by Jamie Opatrny highlighted the C-M rally.

Bill Ewing led Wyoming's 16-hit attack with two home runs and a single in four trips to the plate. He drove in three runs and scored three.

Jon Begerow and Mark Stott each went two for four and Moore went two for five to account for six of the Stags' 10 hits.

Moore drove in two runs and scored two while Begerow picked up one run and two RBI and Stott added one of each.

Wyoming's record, compiled largely against large NCAA schools like Arizona State and Oklahoma, is now 3-9. Claremont-Mudd, 7-5 on the year, will take its 3-0 SCIAC record into a doubleheader at Whittier Saturday at noon.

NFL players hope to reach agreement

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Dick Anderson, president of the National Football League Players Association, met with the club owners today in a renewed effort to reach contractual agreement.

Anderson, defensive back for the Miami Dolphins, asked to make the appearance before the annual meeting of the NFL to discuss issues. Owners and players have not had a master contract for two years as disagrements continue over several issues.

In the impasse, the owners have ceased contributing to the players' pension fund and action has centered in the courts where players have achieved verdicts against the so-called Rozelle compensation rule.

Under its terms, a team which loses a player who plays out the option year of his contract and signs with another team, is granted compensation from the signing club.

The rule is named for NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who awards the compensation. Players have argued they should be free to make individual deals when they play out their options.

During the coming season, referees throughout the league will be equipped with radio microphones for explaining their calls to fans in the stadium.

Use of the radio communication was done on an experimental basis at some games late in the 1975 series.

The owners on Wednesday voted three changes in the playing rules.

The official coin toss will be held three minutes before kickoff with the referee and team captains present. The toss will be live on the referee's microphone so fans will hear the dialogue from midfield.

In another move designed to aid the fans, the NFL will have time clocks in each end zone to show the 30 seconds in which an offensive team must get a play under way.

The clocks, four feet high and six feet wide with three foot numbers, will be the official timing device for the offensive team getting the ball in play. However, the field judge still will have the responsibility for timing including keeping the time manually in case of a malfunction.

At the request of several quarterbacks, the league voted to eliminate the white striped football which has been used for late starting day games and night games. Throwers complained the painted stripes made the ball slippery.

At the same time, the owners instructed the commissioner's office to discuss with the manufacturer the possibility of having another method of assisting in ball identity.

The proposal to widen the playing field was tabled.

Rejected again was a proposal that a pass receiver need have only one foot in bounds for a legal catch. The NFL requires both feet be in bounds, and a spokesman said this requires additional skill on the part of the receiver and requires him to slow up to get both feet in, thus helping to avoid the possibility of injury.

Pats may deal Jim Plunkett

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Trade rumors at the National Football League meetings here center on quarterback Jim Plunkett of New England, and the Patriots' Coach and General Manager, Chuck Fairbanks, readily admitted Wednesday there have been several discussions.

Plunkett, the former Stanford star, has only his option year to go with New England and his future course of action remains in doubt.

Currently there is a moratorium on any trades in the NFL until April 2, when the veteran draft to stock the Tampa Bay and Seattle expansion clubs will have been completed.

Fairbanks said, "Possibly we will trade Plunkett. He hasn't made up his mind what he wants to do. It will be a major impact on us either way."

The Patriots recently signed reserve quarterback Steve Grogan to a five-year pact following his rookie year, when he filled in for Plunkett while the veteran was injured.

Fairbanks said he would like to know Plunkett's status before the collegiate draft April 8-9, and said Plunkett "told me he would tell me by that time."

San Francisco, Los Angeles and other clubs are reportedly interested in the New England quarterback. Fairbanks said he had talked to clubs but avoided specifics by saying, "The number doesn't make any difference. I hear a different rumor every day."

Fairbanks said that with Plunkett, New England would be just "where we'd like to be in the quarterback situation. We'd have Plunkett at 28 with experience, and a fine young player in Grogan."

Plunkett suffered a separated shoulder last season, but Fairbanks said he had completely recovered.

"The guy's got a lot of guts, a pretty tough guy," he said, referring to Plunkett's comeback after surgery to repair the shoulder.

The New England official said he knew the problems Plunkett was debating on whether to stay with the Patriots, but said: "It is personal and not to be discussed in public."

He indicated a contract was not the issue involved.

"The issue is purely whether he will return to the Patriots and play out his option. The initial proposals for a new contract between his representative and us were not that far apart."

Fairbanks said the Patriots signed Grogan to a five-year contract because "we feel he is a valuable property, did well for us last season and was deserving of improvement on his contract."

'Pack is 8-0

Claremont High ran its tennis record to 8-0 with a non-league victory over Webb, 18¼-9¾, Wednesday afternoon on the Golden Gauls' courts.

The doubles team of Jeff Arce and Yerone Stempo picked up 5¼ of the Wolfpack points, and Greg Kaufman added 3½ in singles play.

Memphis may file suit on NFL

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The National Football League's refusal to admit the Memphis Grizzlies as an expansion franchise has triggered threats of a lawsuit by the booster club of the former World Football League team.

jmeanwhile, Memphis Mayor Wyeth Chandler said he didn't consider the NFL owners' refusal Tuesday to expand into Memphis a flat rejection. "We are hoping for 1977 and we'll try to keep interest of the city high," he said.

The president of the Bear Force, the Grizzlies' booster club, didn't look at it that way. "The NFL has violated our constitutional rights by not allowing us to have a team in Memphis," said Dick Fabian.

The NFL owners, meeting in San Diego, rejected the effort by Grizzlies' owner John Bassett to gain entry to the league. NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said the owners did not want to begin another expansion while they were still facing litigation over the players' contracts, the player draft and other problems.

"Hang tough," Rozelle advised Memphis football fans. "Memphis will get its day."

That didn't satisfy the Bear Force and its president. "We're going to institute action against the league," Fabian said, adding that several Memphis lawyers had offered to handle the lawsuit without fee.

Bassett, who has spent an estimated $7 million to bring pro football to Memphis, was visibly upset by the NFL owners' action. He has discussed filing an antitrust lawsuit against the NFL, but he has maintained he would prefer other means to obtain a franchise for the city.

On Wednesday, Mike Storen, the Grizzlies' executive vice president, said the team will announce next week its plans for refunding more than $450,000 being held in escrow for season ticket pledges. More than 45,000 Memphis fans put up $10 each as down payment on season tickets if the NFL admitted the team.

Sports briefs

TURLOCK, Calif. (AP) — Stanislaus State College basketball coach Armin Pipho has resigned to accept a position in Minnesota, the school announced today.

Pipho, 36, will leave at the end of the current school year to become athletic director and director of the Physical Education Department at Concordia College in Moorhead, Minn., a school spokesman said.

In three seasons at Stanislaus State, he compiled a 30-50 record, including a 10-15 record for the current season, the school's first in the Far West Conference.

A new coach was expected to be named shortly, the spokesman said.

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A new football coach will be chosen by the start of spring practice April 13, Michigan State University President Clifton R. Wharton Jr. said Wednesday.

The selection of a replacement for Denny Stolz will be made by a committee of faculty members, Wharton and new athletic director Joseph Kearney. Stolz resigned Tuesday under pressure from Wharton.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bill Ford, the trainer for the Washington Bullets, was killed early today when his car collided headon with a tractor trailor inside the Baltimore Harbor Tunnel.

According to police, Ford, 46, was en route to his home in Bowie, Md., when he passed another vehicle and ran directly into the path of a northbound truck shortly before 2 a.m.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Indiana University track star Steve Heidenreich was fighting for his life Wednesday after being struck by a car while working out near campus late Tuesday night.

Heidenreich, described as the best mile runner in the Big Ten Conference, was critically injured and underwent four hours of brain surgery Wednesday. The driver of the car fled after the accident, police said.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — If the price is right, Bernard King's career as a Tennessee basketball player may be over.

King, 6-foot-7 sophomore from New York said Wednesday he will apply for a hardship waiver, making himself eligible for the National Basketball Association draft.

"I definitely will consider turning pro if things are to my liking," said King, indicating that the bonus for signing would have to be a good one.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mike Mosley and Bill Simpson are the latest drivers to enter the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race, Indianapolis Motor Speedway officials said today.

Mosley, of Fallbrook, Calif., will drive one of two cars entered by Jerry O'Connell of San Jose, Calif.

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Retton, who led Fairmont State's Falcons into the 20-victory circle for the 13th straight season, was named The Associated Press College Division 1976 Coach of the Year Thursday.

Combining a high-powered offensive style with a brutal man-to-man defense, the Falcons rolled up a 27-0 record and captured the West Virginia Athletic Conference title for the eighth time under Retton.

JACKSON, Miss. — Top-seeded Ken Rosewall downed Anand Amritraj 4-6, 6-1, 7-5 in opening-round action of the World Championship Tennis South Invitational.

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas — Steve Neff held the lead with a 216 average after the third round of the BPAA U.S. Open Bowling Tournament.

WASHINGTON, D.C — Unranked Onny Parun of New Zealand upset top-seeded Tony Roche of Australia 7-6, 7-6 in first-round action of the $600,000 World Championship Tennis Tournament.

HOUSTON — Top-seeded Evonne Goolagong of Australia defeated Isabel Fernandez of Colombia 6-3, 6-2 to move on to the second round of the Maureen Connolly Brinker Women's Tennis Tournament.

CLEVELAND — Thistledown Race Track cancelled its program because of snow and cold weather.

BOSTON — Suffolk Downs canceled racing because of snow.

NIT dream for UNC-C

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the solid gold shows in New York these days is "The Wiz," a modern version of that old movie classic, "The Wizard of Oz."

The story involves a girl who is swept away in a root-lifting Kansas twister and finds herself in an odd, picturesque land chasing a rainbow and finding a magical wizard who makes her dreams come true.

If there's anything symbolic attached to it, the North Carolina-Charlotte basketball team went to see it Wednesday night. The 49ers are chasing rainbows, too—in the National Invitation Tournament title.

"This has been a dream come true for me," said Lee Rose, whose 49ers meet North Carolina State tonight in an NIT semifinal game. "I'm so shook up I can't eat."

After Providence and Kentucky play the opener of the semifinal doubleheader at Madison Square Garden, the Carolina neighbors will have their Civil War.

"It's really nothing personal, but I'd rather play anyone else in the world than North Carolina-Charlotte right now," said North Carolina State Coach Norm Sloan. "There's no way we can match their emotion. It isn't enough that UNC-Charlotte is a great team, that they're trying to make a name for themselves and that they want revenge from a loss to us earlier in the season. Now, their coach's wife wants the NIT championship for an anniversary present."

Sloan's remark, delivered deadpan at a press conference Wednesday, was in reference to a remark made kiddingly by Rose. The 49ers' coach joked that he had to win, "or my marriage would be dissolved. She wants the NIT for our anniversary present."

The game has significant meaning for UNC-Charlotte. The 49ers have lived for some time in the shadow of North Carolina State's gaudy Atlantic Coast Conference—and life there hasn't been easy, according to Rose.

"It's been tough building a basketball program with those ACC teams around," Rose said. "You've seen our team—we don't have much depth. All we have is a lot of heart."

"They're a great basketball team," said Sloan. "No wonder most of the ACC teams don't want to play them."

North Carolina State has been one of the few ACC teams to acknowledge UNC-Charlotte's existence. The Wolfpack played the 49ers earlier in the season and beat them by three points in a questionable decision at home.

Before they stage the Battle of the Carolinas, the opener will feature an intriguing difference in philosophies—Kentucky's inside power game against Providence's finesse.

"Our team is playing well now," said Providence Coach Dave Gavitt. "We were physically banged up earlier in the year, but we had a week's rest before the start of the NIT and this helped us."

Smith will fight Ballard

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fourth-ranked heavyweight Howard Smith will meet Jody Ballard at the Olympic Auditorium April 8, then Art Haffey, the No. 1 featherweight contender, will fight David Sotello April 15, Olympic matchmaker Dan Chargin announced Wednesday.

Smith, from Los Angeles, has a 21-1 record with 16 knockouts. Ballard, of Houston, is 12-3 with 10 knockouts.

Marshall has the answer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Mike Marshall doesn't see why baseball owners and players don't use the "pie principle" or the "cattle fence formula" to settle their current labor impasse.

"The pie principle is good when two people don't trust each other, as is true in this case," the 33-year-old relief pitching ace of the Los Angeles Dodgers said while awaiting Wednesday's meeting of the players' Executive Board here.

"You and a friend want to divide a pie but each is suspicious of the other. You have two alternatives. You can let a third person come in and cut the pie. Or you can agree—one cuts the pie, the other takes his choice."

In the meeting, one of the things the Executive Board did was suggest that the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Board be brought into the conflict.

"Or another analogy—I like to deal in analogies," the ironman pitcher said. "It's like the old cattle and sheep feuds of the West. The important thing is to have a good fence. Good fences make good neighbors.

"Now in our baseball negotiations we are dealing with fences in a way. The arbitrator and the courts have built a fence. Maybe, because of the Messersmith case, the good grazing land and water are on our side—the players' side.

"The owners now are like the sheepherders. They say they haven't got enough water on their side of the fence. So, as good neighbors, we let them come on our side of the fence. They're not content just to take some of the grazing land and water. Soon they want it all."

This, insisted Marshall, is analagous to the owners' suggestion for modifying the so-called "one-and-one" plan—free agency after a year without a contract — and installing an eight-year reserve clause.

"The courts have given us the 'one-and-one' without strings," he added. "Actually we are not bound to give up any more."

Marshall insists he is not one of those vengeful militants who not only would like to step on the owners' face now that they are down, but would also like to pivot.

"The owners have got to live, too," he said. "If they say they can't meet the payroll without going broke, then they have the same right of appeal that we have—the Taft-Hartley act which was passed in Franklin Roosevelt's administration.

"You can't get blood out of a stone. But as soon as they say the club pleads poverty and near bankruptcy, they should open up their books. But they never do."

Marshall said he sees no reason that the owners and players can't show more trust of each other and negotiate an honorable contract.

"The 'one-and-one' even isn't necessary," he said. "Let's take the case of Fred Lynn (Boston's rookie outfielder who was the 1975 Most Valuable Player in the American League). He plays for me his first year. I offer him $20,000 for the first year and $25,000 for the second.

"But Lynn has a fantastic year. So I go to him and say, 'Fred, I am tearing up your 1976 contract. I am giving you $50,000 this year and $75,000 next year.' It's all done with mutual trust and in good faith."

Marshall admitted this was a little idealistic. It was also hypothetical. The brilliant rookie is reported asking for a $1 million plus, multi-year contract.

Iron Mike could hardly be recognized as the man with the Fu Manchu mustache, long hair and stand-offish mannerisms who won the Cy Young Award in 1974 by appearing in 106 games and pitching the Dodgers into the World Series as a teammate of Andy Messersmith, who figured in the celebrated free agent ruling.

He is clean-shaven with neatly-cut hair. On this occasion he was outspoken, affable with no longer an allergy to the press.

"I never harbored any ill feeling for the press generally," he said. "Just some of them—those who have written about me unobjectively and tried to place me in a bad light.

"I am not a complicated man at all. I have a $23,000 home in East Lansing, Mich. I have a family. am a student and teacher. I love Michigan State. I don't look for trouble, but I do not dodge it."

Marshall currently is involved in a campus incident at Michigan State, arrested for practicing baseball in an intramural building and disturbing some tennis players nearby.

"It is a long and involved story," he said, pulling out a copy of a suit he has filed in county court. "It goes all the way back to 1960 when I was an all-star high school pitcher.

"I applied for a scholarship. I received only a half scholarship. I turned professional and they didn't like that."

A student and part-time teacher at the university, Marshall said for a number of years he worked out in the intramural facility. Then two tennis courts were installed. But the pitching area was allowed to stay—some four feet from the courts.

Claremont Kings enjoy 4-0 shutout

The Spittin' Image Claremont Kings of the Pacific Soccer League advanced to the quarterfinals of the Southern California Challenge Cup competition last week by defeating the Bolivians of the San Diego Soccer League, 4-0.

Larry Ryan scored twice while Matt Smith and Lance Folden each scored once. Pat Jones, Doug Jollymour, Bill Bryant, and Matt Smith were credited with assists. The Kings' defense recorded their first shut-out of the year. Goalkeeper Steve Tipping and fullbacks Doug Jollymour, Van Evers, and Mike Folden were outstanding on defense.

This Saturday's quarterfinal game is still unscheduled due to a pending protest by Veracruz of the California League. If the protest is upheld, the Kings will play Veracruz on Saturday. If the protest is denied the Kings will travel to San Diego to play San Ysidro.

The Diamond Bar Kickers of the Pacific Soccer League will play the Fountain Valley Ravens at 2 p.m. on Sunday at El Roble Intermediate School in a Division IV quarter final game. The Kickers drew a bye last weekend in Cup competition.
